'No deliberate attempt to deceive'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Friday President Johnson made no "deliberate attempt to deceive" the American people about U.S. involvement in Vietnam in the 1964 presidential campaign, despite what was reported in the Pentagon study on American involvement in Vietnam.

"If one looks at the total of what he said, he gave a balanced representation of what was then considered a moderate point of view," Rusk said.

Rusk, now a professor of international law at the University of Georgia, made the remarks in a NBC-TV interview on the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

The former secretary of state admitted that he may have erred during the escalation of the Vietnam war. "I personally underestimated the determination and persistence of the North Vietnamese," he said.

"I overestimated the ability of the American people to accept a protracted conflict," he said.

Rusk said one "has to be aware of the possibility of human error."

"Those pressing for us to get out today, regardless of the consequences, just may be making the mistake of their lives," he added.

Rusk denied one implication in the study that he ever advocated the use of nuclear weapons if the Soviet Union or Red China were drawn into the war.

"What I really meant was that you should try to handle this affair in such a way so as not to convert it into a war among the major powers," he said.

"Under no circumstances at any time did I ever make a recommendation to use nuclear weapons. I don't believe any man in his right mind could rationally make such a recommendation," he said.

Rusk said he thought press reports on the secret study were presenting a clear picture to "some extent." But he said he wished the New York Times and the Washington Post would tell who prepared the report if they knew.

Rusk said he did not know of the Pentagon study until after excerpts were published in The Times. He said he then called former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, who confirmed that he made the study as a kind of "informal in-house report."

Rusk said the papers were within their right to publish the study, so long as it did not violate national security. But he added "the public also has a right to expect its business

Hole in spaceship reported cause of cosmonauts' death

MOSCOW (AP) — A tiny hole in a wall of the Soyuz 11 spaceship caused the deaths of the three Soviet cosmonauts, Western Communist sources reported Friday night.

The ashes of the three were entombed in the Kremlin Wall earlier Friday after a solemn funeral. According to the Communist sources, the small hole in the Soyuz landing cabin was the result of slight damage when the cabin separated from the Soyuz orbital compartment.

The sources, who could not be identified, said the hole became enlarged when the craft's retrobraking rockets were fired immediately before the three began their descent into the earth's atmosphere Wednesday.

The larger hole caused a sudden depressurization of the cosmonauts' cabin and a fatal rise in their blood pressure, the sources said. They said the crew apparently died instantly of what was described as "an explosion of blood to the brain."

The sources said that description represented what was determined by a Soviet government medical commission Friday after a two-day inquest into the space deaths.

No official announcement has been made indicating the cause of the cosmonauts' deaths at the end of their record 24-day space flight, most of it aboard the orbiting laboratory Salyut. A Russian science writer offered the theory that the cause was a hatch slightly ajar on the ship.

The Western Communist sources who attributed the deaths to a hole in the cabin gave no indication of whether the damage was caused by a mechanical fault or the handling of the space ship by the crew.

Pullout in '71 possible--Laird

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird indicated Friday it would be logistically possible to remove all U.S. troops from Vietnam by year's end, the deadline proposed by Vietnam Communists in their new seven-point peace plan.

Laird, speaking on departure for a two-week tour of the Far East, said however that billions of dollars worth of military equipment might have to be left behind if such a hasty pullout schedule were adopted.

HIS COMMENTS on the Communist proposals, one of which called for simultaneous release of U.S. prisoners of war and total American withdrawal by Dec. 31, followed a statement by House Speaker Carl Albert that the Nixon administration had received secret overtures from the North Vietnamese.

"I don't want to get too deep into this," said the Oklahoma Democrat, who had breakfast with President Nixon on Monday, "but we are getting communications from Hanoi, directly and indirectly, from Paris and otherwise, that indicate things are moving."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield also indicated the existence of Vietnam to seek a political settlement — 17 months before Johnson made that move on March 31, 1968 — the New York Times said Friday.

In May 1967, the study reveals, McNamara went a step further, putting forward what the Pentagon analysts call the "Radical" proposal that the Johnson administration "scale down" its objectives in Vietnam to open the way toward political compromise with the Viet Cong guerrilla movement.

McNAMARA'S disillusionment with the war had been reported previously, but the depth of his dissent from established policy is fully documented for the first time in the Pentagon study, which he commissioned on June 17, 1967.

The study does not specifically say, however, that McNamara's break with administration policy led President Johnson to nominate him on Nov. 28, 1967, as president of the World Bank and to replace him as secretary of defense.

BUT McNAMARA has previously revealed that in both May and August of 1967 the subject of his possible departure from the

$100,000 skyjack ransom paid

MONTERREY, Mex. (AP) — A man and woman armed with pistols and explosives collected $100,000 in ransom for a hostage Friday after hijacking a Texas-bound jetliner with 110 persons aboard and forcing it to land here.

They released 100 passengers and three of five stewardesses and took off again, with Africa mentioned as a possible ultimate destination of the Braniff International jet.

The hijackers held the Boeing 707 at the airport for five hours to await the ransom money and have the craft refueled.

Five American crewmen were still aboard when it resumed its uncertain journey.

The Mexican Transportation Ministry said the hijackers apparently were an American man, named Robert Jackson, and a Mexican woman, Alicia Fuentes, whose name appeared on the passenger manifest as Lidia Sanchez. In Washington, the Federal Aviation Administration gave identities of the hijackers as Robert Lee Jackson, 36, no home town available, and Lidia Sanchez-Archilla.

Officials in Monterrey said the craft was bound for Trinidad-Tobago. The air traffic control bureau in Mexico City reported half an hour after takeoff that the plane was headed for Lima, Peru.

In Lima, a Braniff spokesman said Lima's airport had been alerted and indicated the hijackers had mentioned Africa as their ultimate destination.

"As far as we know, the plane would make a stopover in Lima on its way to Africa," he said.

Aboard with the two hijackers were five Americans — the three-man crew and two stewardesses.

The hijackers also had held one passenger hostage, threatening to kill her if the ransom was not paid. She was released when the money was delivered.

Seventy-three of the released passengers arrived in San Antonio, Tex., later aboard another plane.

The hijacked crew members were pilot Capt. Dale Bessant of Grapevine, Tex.; copilot William Wallace, and flight engineer Phillip Wray, both of Dallas, Tex., and hostesses Tina Garcia and Susan Harris, both of Corpus Christi, Tex.

The stewardesses who were released were identified by airline officials as Jeanette Crepps of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Anita Mayer of Doylestown, Pa. and Iris Williams of Indianapolis, Ind.

Miss Crepps said the hijacker first approached her as the aircraft was preparing to land at San Antonio, stuck a gun in her ribs and kept it there for the next hour and a half.

She said he told her he had a pint of nitroglycerine in his suitcase and warned, "Don't anybody try to be a hero... if you do this is going to blow us all up."

$7.3 billion state budget sent to trim-ready Reagan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Legislature sent a $7.3 billion state budget to Gov. Reagan Friday, including a whopping $835 million deficit that could mean a tax increase of up to $165 a year for the average California family of four.

Reagan and a staff of fiscal advisers were waiting two floors below in the Capitol, prepared to slash hundreds of millions of dollars from the Democratic-drafted budget.

A spokesman announced that Reagan would sign the budget at 9 a.m. today. He said Reagan's staff would spend most of the night trying to decide what to cut out of the spending document.

The Senate quickly approved the budget 36-2 Friday morning. The Assembly approved it 54 to 26 later in the day after deadlocking three hours at 53-27, one vote short of the two-thirds margin needed to send the bill to the governor.

Republican leaders of both houses condemned the budget for the huge $835 million deficit it contained, but they asked for "yes" votes to end the fiscal crisis created Wednesday midnight when the state started a new fiscal year without a budget act to pay its bills.

Reagan had asked Republican legislators to vote for the budget despite the huge deficit created by Democratic additions to his $6.74 billion spending plan.

The Republican governor said he was ready to use his broad item-by-item veto authority to line hundreds of millions of dollars out of the spending plan.

Fiscal experts in the Capitol say that even if Reagan cuts the budget back to the austerity level of his own budget proposal, it would now require a tax boost of $200 million to $400 million this year.

Q. I knit covers for wooden coat hangers and they make lovely gifts. I have heard there is a way to cover wire hangers with crochet, but I haven't been able to find a pattern. Can ACTION LINE help? H.C., Lakewood.

A. "We used to have some very old patterns for crocheting wire hangers, but they have been sold and the patterns discontinued," a spokesman for the Super Yarn Mart, 644 Pine Ave., told ACTION LINE. However, she said the crocheting simply involves single crocheting around the hanger, or you can wrap the wire with some old material, crochet your design and tack the crochet to the material. She suggested your stop by the Super Yarn Mart for further instructions.

Clamp up

Q. I am looking for an attachment that fastens to the handle of a golf bag cart and holds an open umbrella so the golfer would be shaded as he walks along. I haven't been able to find one and I would like your help. F.B., Long Beach.

A. We were unable to find an attachment made specifically for golf carts but we were told that most hardware stores would have a variety of clamps that may do the job. Also, the Akron store at 4850 Faculty Ave. in the Lakewood Shopping Center, has an umbrella for sun-shy beach gear that clamps to a tubular frame chair. It should work on a golf cart. At the time of this writing it is on sale in their Patio and Garden shop for $1.79.

The ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles, along with other major West Coast ports, stood idle for the third day today with no end in sight for the first Pacific Coast waterfront strike in 23 years.

There are no negotiations scheduled between the 15,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Union and the Pacific Maritime Association, representing 120 employers. Late Friday, a spokesman for the Pacific Maritime Association said the office "was closed down for the long July 4 weekend."

A telephone call to the union headquarters went unanswered.

Earlier Friday the Pacific Maritime Association issued a statement claiming the union had failed to live up to its agreement to move perishable commodities sitting on Long Beach and Los Angeles docks. Officials of the union, however, said paperwork involved in clearing the goods for shipment was holding up the operation, not the strike.

By Friday, 41 vessels had been idled at Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors.

A few ships bearing U.S. cargo are putting into Ensenada, Mexico, and Vancouver, B.C., to avoid the West Coast labor dispute. Freight is being sent into the United States overland by truck and rail.

Bernadette Devlin pregnant

Combined News Services

Bernadette Devlin, unmarried 23-year-old, firebrand of Northern Ireland politics, announced Friday that she is pregnant. She refused to name the father.

Her disclosure, coupled with her attitude to such current topics as permissiveness and abortion, sparked sharp reactions among the feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics in her homeland.

Miss Devlin, a Roman Catholic and the youngest legislator in the United Kingdom's House of Commons, revealed her pregnancy in an interview with the Irish Times of Dublin.

She said she had decided against an abortion — legal in Britain — and would have the baby in the fall.

Callers at her London home were told she was not available to answer questions.

Miss Devlin, a former psychology student and the first woman to become pregnant while a member of the House of Commons, said the baby would not upset her political career.

She told Irish Times reporter Mary Cummins: "My morals are a private matter. When I'm a member of Parliament, I represent a political program."

The news delighted some militant Protestants in Belfast, Northern Ireland's capital. The Rev. Martin Smyth, leader of the Orange Order, commented: "We expect higher standards for our politicians, no matter what side of the political fence they are on."

In the Bogside Roman Catholic quarter of Londonderry, Ulster's second largest city, Miss Devlin's pregnancy shocked older people though young voters and teen-agers said her popularity would be unaffected.

ONE youth said: "She could have had an abortion and no one would have known anything about it."

Another commented: "This is her personal affair. It has nothing to do with her politically."

Miss Devlin said in the Irish Times interview, "My moral position on abortion is that I would not be able to justify it to myself. This is something that people have got to decide for themselves. My decision is no."

She said she was unsure of the effect her pregnancy would have on the strong Roman Catholic vote that elected her to Parliament as an independent.

She said that when she told her family, "They took it in different ways. But most of them were good about it. I felt better for telling them."

Members of the family who live in Cookstown, 50 miles west of Belfast, were

Divorce suit

George Kennedy, nominated for an Academy Award for his supporting role as a tough airline maintenance chief in "Airport," was sued for divorce Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court.

His wife of 12 years asked alimony and support for their two children.

Kennedy, 48, and Norma Kennedy, 42, were married in Juarez, Mexico, and separated this week.

Right to die

A 72-year-old Miami woman afflicted with terminal anemia that is destroying her red blood cells has a right to die in peace, without pain, a judge ruled Friday.

Circuit Judge David Popper acceded to Mrs. Carmen Martinez' "please don't torture me any more" plea and ruled the woman does not have to accept medical treatment.

Popper handed down his ruling after Mrs. Martinez' physician, Dr. Rolando Lopez, asked the court if he should attempt to force the woman to accept blood transfusions and minor surgery because "This is her only chance." Lopez testified, however, "there is more chance that she will die than live."

Why quit?

Geraldine Brodrick, the Australian who gave birth to nine babies last month, says she hopes to have more children. And she said she will again take a fertility drug, if necessary.

The 29-year-old Canberra housewife gave birth on June 13 in Sydney. Two of the babies were stillborn and the other seven died later.

Mrs. Brodrick and her 32-year-old husband, Leonard, are vacationing in Waikiki with their two daughters, Belinda, 5, and Jacqueline, 4.

Jackie suit

A U.S. District Court judge in New York Friday ordered a trial in the $1.3 million damage suit brought against Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis by a professional photographer.

Judge Edward C. McLean also ordered a trial in Mrs. Onassis' $1.5 million countersuit against the photographer, Ronald E. Galella. He dismissed Mrs. Onassis' petition to dismiss the photographer's action.

The court action resulted from picture-taking episodes in Central Park in the fall of 1969. No trial date was set.

50 Red bodies found in sweep

SAIGON — South Vietnamese troops sweeping jungled mountains around artillery bases near the demilitarized zone found bodies of 50 Communist soldiers in freshly dug graves Friday and captured large quantities of anti-aircraft ammunition. Allied artillery roared all along the DMZ between North and South Vietnam with the apparent aim of stemming heavy North Vietnamese infiltration in the third week of a Communist offensive.

A U.S. cargo helicopter airlifted a bulldozer to Fire Base Fuller Friday and South Vietnamese troops began rebuilding the base while fighting raged on the slopes of Dong Ha mountain on which the embattled base is situated. U.S. B52 bombers saturated the area after the South Vietnamese defenders beat off an assault by 300 enemy troops.

CIA 'hated' JFK

LONDON — A former Pentagon liaison officer with the Central Intelligence Agency said Friday President Kennedy engendered the hate of the CIA by trying to curb the agency's power. He also said he did not think Lee Harvey Oswald "by himself killed President Kennedy" in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. L. Fletcher Prouty, a retired U.S. Air Force colonel and the director of special operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 1962 and 1963, said Kennedy issued two directives in 1961 to limit the CIA's power but the documents never surfaced and were not implemented.

Eighty nonpolice employees walked off the job because the Mill Valley, Calif., City Council refused to negotiate with them. About 3,000 carpenters halted construction in California and Oregon when they walked off the job and some 6,000 union painters and 1,000 sheetmetal workers struck in San Francisco.

Cautious skepticism

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration assumed an attitude of cautious skepticism Friday toward the latest Viet Cong proposal for a settlement of the Vietnam war. Senior officials emphasized in private conversations that it was too soon to tell whether the seven-point proposal outlined at the Paris peace talks Thursday might form the basis for substantive negotiations to end the war. In Paris, Viet Cong Foreign Minister Madame Nguyen Thi Binh hinted she might be ready to discuss Vietnam peace issues with special presidential adviser Henry Kissinger during his Paris visit July 10.

Midcast initiative

WASHINGTON — The United States Friday prepared a new diplomatic initiative to promote an interim settlement between Egypt and Israel on reopening the Suez Canal. Two U.S. diplomats will fly to Cairo Sunday with new American suggestions aimed at getting Egyptian-Israeli talks on the canal underway. Details of the U.S. proposals were not disclosed.

Police slowdown on pay continues

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-2
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., July 3, 1971

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

An apparent police slowdown — indicated by a declining number of arrests — was staged Friday by Long Beach officers to protest rejection of their pay demands by the city council.

Only four arrests were made during the day shift

Friday, as opposed to six to 15 arrests on the same shift during the previous week.

Graveyard-shift records showed only seven arrests during the first eight hours of the day, while an average number of arrests for that shift ranges from 20 to 25, police officials said.

Despite the declining number of arrests, Police Chief William J. Moonney said there was no evidence of a slowdown.

His statement was disputed by the attorney for the Long Beach Police Officers' Assn.

Attorney Stephen W. Solomon said the declining arrests did indicate a slowdown, while he called "a grass root, spontaneous reaction of the patrol group and other police officers."

"It seems to me that the city council is attempting to punish the officers because they are members of a police association, rather than accepting the realities of the problems and attempting to solve them," he said.

Solomon said he remained available to the council or city manager's office for renegotiation of the wage dispute.

The Long Beach Police Officers' Association has called for a campaign, it termed "Super Cop", in which fewer traffic citations will be written and routine calls will be handled in minute detail.

The action followed the council's rejection of the association's demand to bring local law enforcement salaries up to parity with those of Los Angeles city police and county sheriff's deputies.

The council voted unanimously Thursday to adopt the salary recommendations of City Manager John R. Mansell for pay hikes from 5.4 per cent for patrolmen to 10.8 per cent for captains. The association sought raises ranging from 13.5 per cent to 24.3 per cent.

Moonney said Friday that officers don't intend to jeopardize the safety of the city's residents. "They will continue to do a professional job of law enforcement," he said.

Solomon told officers to practice their slowdown on a "highly professional level."

"Investigate every case, every accident to the limit," he said. "Do everything as best you can, and if it takes two hours to make a report, take two hours. Give the public super service, and if the calls pile up, that's tough."

Moderate quake jars Riverside, San Bernardino

SAN BERNARDINO — An earthquake measuring 3.2 on the Richter scale jarred the San Bernardino-Riverside area Friday but no damage was reported.

Some residents were awakened by the 3:48 a.m. tremor. The location was placed in the southern area of El Cajon Pass.

Bank robber takes $400 for surgery

Bank teller Sally O'Leary knew it was a robbery when the man shoved a note across the counter at her cage at the Bank of America branch, 3804 Atlantic Ave., Friday at 1:40 p.m.

She thought it odd, however, that the note demanded a specific amount — $400. It read: "This is a holdup. I have a gun. I want $400 in twenties and tens. Do not press the alarm until I'm outside."

The man simulated a gun in his pocket.

Miss O'Leary complied, counting out the $400 in tens and twenties. The bandit turned to walk away, then stopped and said:

"After I'm gone read the other side of the note."

It read: "I have a four-year-old daughter who needs an operation."

Miss O'Leary described the bandit as about 30 to 35 years old, 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

County hospital rate-hike likely

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Fees at county hospitals are expected to jump an average of 16 per cent under a new rate schedule coming up for approval Tuesday.

Hospital officials said Friday the new rates, which would be effective July 1 if passed by the board, would produce about $14 million in added revenue.

This would have the effect of increasing anticipated revenue for the hospital system to $119 million for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Officials said the new rates will be applied to private patients who have some ability to pay as well as to state and federally funded programs such as Medi-Cal and Medicare.

They said rising medical costs and salary raises were mainly responsible for the increase.

At Long Beach General Hospital, the rate for acute medical treatment will drop from $54 to $45 a day because of an increased patient load and because part of the services will be covered by a grant this year.

Surgical rates — a new service — will be $200 a day, while rehabilitation will jump from $37 to $70, chronic medical care from $53 to $59 and outpatient care from $35 to $38 a day.

INPATIENT and outpatient observation care will remain at $25 and $9 a day, respectively.

At El Cerrito Hospital, chronic medical care will jump from $35 to $75 a day while the new outpatient service will cost $23 a day. Inpatient and outpatient observation rates remain at $25 and $9 a day.

Most dramatic change at Harbor General Hospital is in the home hemodialysis treatment for kidney patients.

Where use of equipment is necessary, the cost for two treatments a week will jump from $491 a month to $845, while the hike for three treatments a week is from $636 to $1,094 a month.

Where equipment is not used, the biweekly treatment will rise from $374 to $643 and the triweekly from $519 to $892 a month.

AMONG other increases at Harbor are: Acute medical from $134 to $148 a day; obstetrical care for mothers from $143 to $153; surgical specialties from $115 to $128; intensive care from $176 to $225; pediatric care from $105 to $139; and dialysis for kidney patients in the hospital from $185 to $338.

Hospital spokesmen said the big increase in the dialysis rates resulted from a reassessment of the program which was only started last year.

"Being a new program we tended to underassess the rates last year," a spokesman said. "The new fees are calculated on a more accurate cost analysis of actual experience."

Horn raps legislators as CSLB is deprived of planned building

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

President Stephen Horn of California State College, Long Beach, hotly criticized state legislators Friday after funds for a classroom-office building were eliminated in late budget talks, then restored for the building's construction at another campus.

The $2.5-million structure, requiring $1.5-million in state funds is now planned for nearby Cal State-Dominguez Hills.

The unusual transfer, Horn reported, was accomplished in a close-door conference at the behest of state assemblymen who, with other legislators, worked beyond deadline to complete the state's budget.

THE MOVE also overrides earlier agreement between the legislative houses that the five-story structure should remain at Long Beach, intrudes on the master plans of both campuses and negates Board of Trustees' authorization for the construction at Long Beach.

About $30,000 already paid by CSLB to architects for working drawings of the structure is also "thrown down the drain," Horn said, while a $101,000-a-year lease for faculty offices now may be prolonged indefinitely.

"Despite the fact we had them beat in both houses, they reverted it," said Horn. "They not only reverted it — reclaimed the funds for general purposes — they put it back and switched it to Dominguez."

"If this is the way you balance your books, to take back three years of effort, to throw away $30,000, well — I can't believe it," he said.

"What kind of stupidity is this? Is this the way to run the State of California? Not in my book," he continued heatedly. "I personally feel the state ought to face up to a few things — and I personally regard education as an investment, not an expenditure."

THE BUILDING, first included in a state budget in 1968, was planned to include about 100 faculty offices, as well as social science and journalism classrooms and laboratories, Horn explained.

Its construction almost completely would have eliminated the need for prefabricated structures now leased and containing 200 faculty offices on campus.

"In addition to the 200 leased offices, there are 100 faculty currently housed in wooden temporary buildings, conference rooms, work rooms, prep rooms, storage rooms and three men in a two-man office. That's being done to avoid additional lease costs," he said.

Horn reported the building has been a point of diverse contention throughout budget preparations, with area legislators arguing in its favor.

While more than $1-million in federal funds had been authorized for its construction, Gov. Reagan's budget proposal called for the state's share in the cost to revert to California's capital outlay monies.

CALIFORNIA legislative analyst A. Alan Post sought its construction on the Long Beach campus, however, and both legislative houses had agreed with him when the last-minute conference brought the turnaround, Horn reported.

The CSLB president said Sacramento sources pointed out Assemblyman Willie Brown and Assembly Budget Committee Chairman Frank Lautnerman initiated action which led to the final move.

"I wrote letters to both of them, and to all our local legislators," Horn recalled. "I told Mr. Lautnerman the building wasn't a question of adding more students. It's a question of accommodating the students we have now. I don't think he ever answered me."

The odyssey of the planned structure is as unique as the method of its relocation to Dominguez.

First planned in 1969 for the center of the last remaining sizeable lawn on upper campus, the building's progress toward completion was halted by Horn shortly after he became president last August.

TO ACCOMMODATE his revisions in the campus' master plan and to spare a cluster of century-old Pepper Trees on the original site, the new executive ordered the building re-planned for a lower campus location.

Caught by a constricting budget and resulting construction freeze, the structure returned to limbo — where it had been, under suspended study by a state tax board, when Horn arrived at CSLB.

The structure's plan had fallen to inactivity since that time under a continuing tight budget, while rising construction rates hiked its estimated cost by about $300,000, Horn added.

Wilmington bar brawl ends in racial killing

A 26-year-old Samoan laborer Friday pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the pool-cue killing of a Wilmington man.

Sou Molico, of 1040 Colin St., Compton, was charged in the death of 23-year-old Antonio Nadora, of 1116 W. Alton St., Wilmington, last March 27. Trial was in Long Beach Superior Court.

Harbor Division police reported that groups of Samoans and Filipinos became involved in a brawl in Talle's Anchor, a bar at 1204 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington. The fight, in which cues and pool balls were used as weapons, spread into the street, where Nadora was slain.

Judge Hampton Hutton remanded Molico under $12,500 bail and set July 23 for his probation hearing and sentencing.

L.A. armory blast, fake bomb probed

Authorities Friday investigated an early-morning bombing of an Army Reserve Armory and a fake bomb placed near a Beverly Hills travel agency that arranges tours of the Soviet Union.

A crude pipe bomb shattered a glass door and 24 windows shortly after midnight at the one-story headquarters for the 63rd U.S. Army Reserve Command in Lincoln Heights, police said.

Police were alerted by an anonymous woman caller who said a bomb had been placed in the reserve center by the Chicano Liberation Front, a radical Mexican-American group. By time police arrived, the device had exploded.

An anonymous man contacted an official of the Heron Travel Agency and the Los Angeles bureau of the Associated Press to warn that a bomb was set to go off at the travel agency's offices in Beverly Hills.

The official found a cardboard beer carton outside the office flicking loudly. Police said the carton contained a fake bomb made of a clock, wiring and tubing containing an unidentified white powder. A note said, "This is a warning. Stop Russian tours."

Jury recesses in case of Yuba City slayings

YUBA CITY (UPI) — A Sutter County grand jury hearing evidence for two days in the Yuba City mass murders recessed Friday, reportedly until after the Independence Day holidays, without taking any action.

Meanwhile, doctors said they were now convinced Juan V. Corona, suspect in the killings, did suffer a heart attack last month and will be hospitalized for at least one more week.

Doctors said Corona definitely would not be able to attend his preliminary hearing July 13, and defense attorney Richard Hawk said it may be as long as three months before he can appear in court.

New vote seen on end-war bill

Ed Zuckerman
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., said Friday the McGovern-Hatfield amendment to cut off funds for the Vietnam war will be reintroduced — even if he has to do it himself.

And, he predicted, the amendment will receive more than the 42 votes it received last month.

Hartke's pledge to open a fresh assault on the Nixon administration's war policies came in a keynote address as an antiwar convention opened at Hunter Park College in New York City.

The convention, which runs until Sunday and is expected to draw 2,000 participants from around the nation, is sponsored by the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC) which coordinated huge antiwar rallies last April 24 in Washington and San Francisco.

Convention delegates, who represent labor unions, religious groups, antiwar veterans and other peace organizations, are meeting to decide future antiwar activities for the remainder of the summer and next fall.

Hartke's speech was one of the hardest-hitting indictments against the war that he's delivered since he first criticized the war six years ago. The Indiana Democrat was among speakers at last April's rally in Washington.

In the two months since then, he said, "every measurement of public opinion has continued to show the growth of antiwar sentiment here at home, and every development on the battlefield has continued to show the murderous futility of that fraud called 'Vietnamization.'"

One of the most dramatic developments, he said, was the disclosure of the Pentagon papers which "revealed at last to our own people and to the entire world the truth of what some of us had been saying for years — that America's intervention in Vietnam had been fashioned out of the grossest sort of error and sold to Congress and the people through the most brazen sort of deception."

He predicted that the Pentagon study will eventually unmask "Vietnamization" as "an excuse to maintain military domination of the Indochina peninsula for the foreseeable future."

Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., the principal authors of the amendment to establish a Dec. 31 withdrawal date by cutting off funds, announced Thursday their intentions to reintroduce their proposal for a third time.

"If, for any reason McGovern and Hatfield do not reintroduce the amendment, I will . . . And this time we will get more than 42 votes," Hartke said.

HE SAID that if the amendment fails, "I, for one, am not going to let the 1972 military appropriations bill get through the Senate without a long discussion of the uses to which it is likely to be put in Indochina."

Hartke said that "those who voted to continue this war will have a heavy accounting to pay to their constituents." He further said "those in both houses of Congress who insist on voting for war must be replaced by those who will vote for peace."

He urged the convention to undertake the assignment of "winning peace through the ballot box."

'Deception on TV' hit in CBS case

WASHINGTON — "We believe that calculated deception on television must be stopped now before it gets completely out of hand," House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers said Friday.

"Television deception, using cut-away and reverse shots, double-system sound manipulations, non-sequential editing, indeed the whole range of electronic techniques available to the broadcast industry today, cannot be analyzed without examination of outtakes," the West Virginia Democrat added in a statement.

STAGGERS' committee had recommended that the House cite the Columbia Broadcasting System and network president with contempt of Congress for refusing to supply to the committee subpoenaed untelevised material from a CBS documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon."

Staggers said electronic techniques "are not revealed in printed transcripts."

"Congress cannot legislate in a vacuum; we need the outtakes," he said. "We have the duty to protect the public's First Amendment right to know whether what it sees on television is fact or fiction — and we intend to fulfill our duty."

The documentary criticized Pentagon public relations spending practices. Stanton defended his decision and urged that the House "not confirm a citation of contempt which, though directed at CBS, is in effect taking dead aim against the First Amendment."

Staggers said the issue "is simply whether or not we are going to tolerate calculated deception on television. We have seen hard evidence that CBS chopped up film to change what people said and make them say something else."

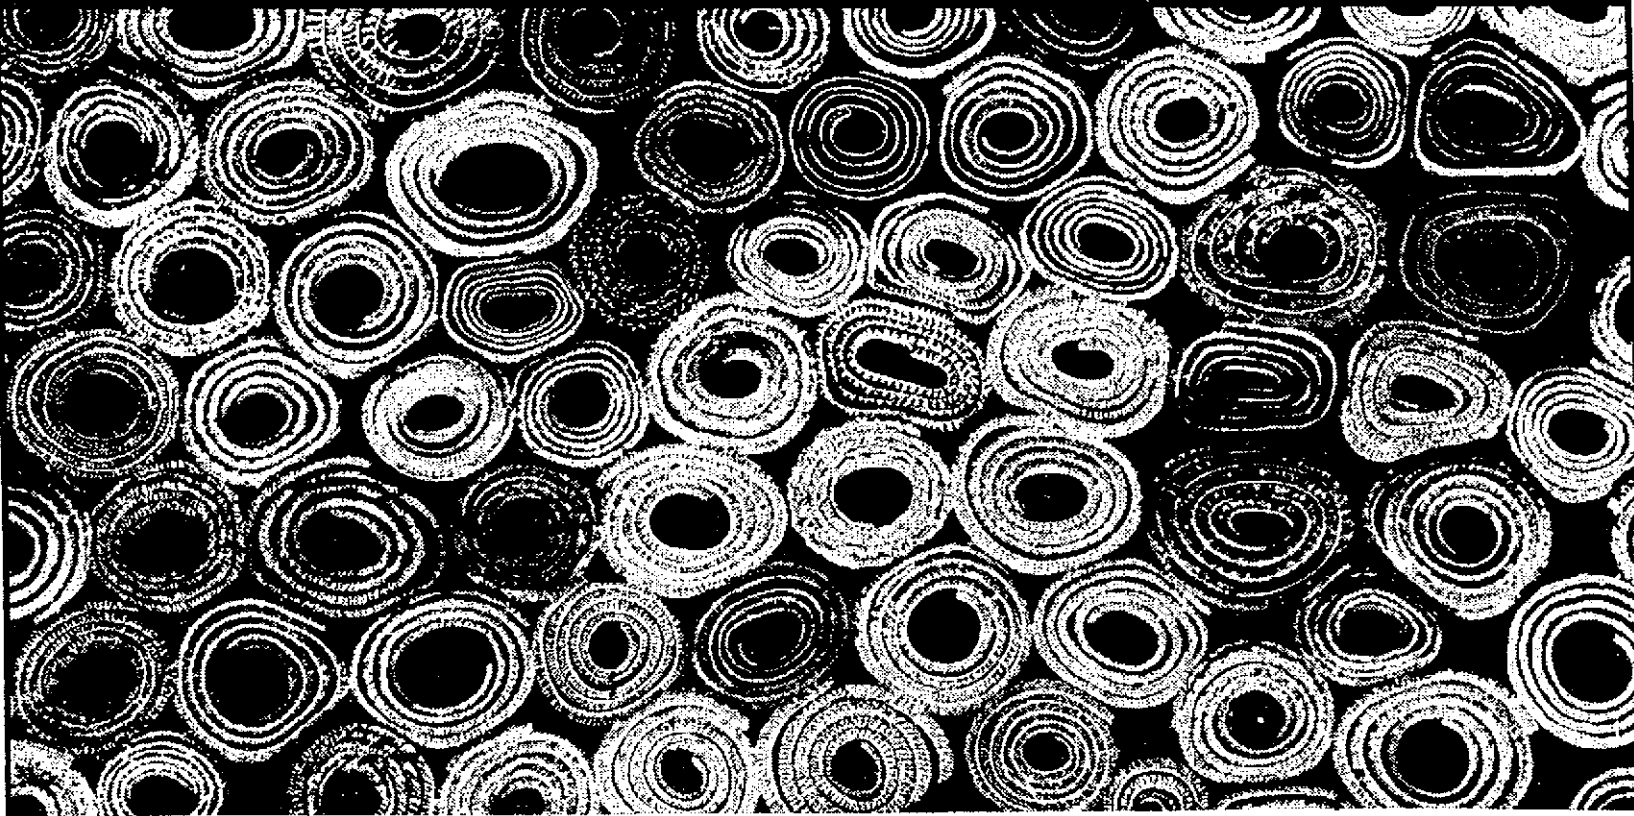

"WE ASK only that CBS let the public take a look at how that was done. CBS, in effect, is saying that it is none of the public's business."

Staggers said that before the CBS contempt recommendation, "the committee has been forced on occasion to bring the television industry to task."

"The rigged quiz show scandals, and the payola and plugola matters are examples. They all involved the same issue that is present today, the perpetuation of calculated deception on the American public," he said.

Navy awards gigantic antisub torpedo pact

WASHINGTON — The Navy chose Gould Inc. Friday to produce the Navy's most advanced antisubmarine torpedo in a program that could reach $2.6 billion.

The contract announced by Secretary of the Navy John H. Chaffee, calls for $115.9 million for manufacture of the Mark 48 torpedo this fiscal year with an option to buy more next year.

The Mark 48, which has had some noise problems during development, mounts a high explosive warhead and is fitted with a system for homing in on the sound of an enemy submarine's engines at long ranges. The weapon also is intended for firing at surface vessels.

It can be launched from either submarines or surface war ships.

California's jobless rate off slightly in June

INDEPENDENT,
PRESS-TELEGRAM--A-5
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., July 3, 1971

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's unemployment rate dropped slightly last month to 7.2 per cent — the lowest rate in three months, the Reagan administration reported Friday.

The jobless rate, well above the national rate of 5.6 per cent, was below the 7.4 per cent recorded for both April and May in California.

In the Long Beach-Los Angeles area the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped from 7.6 per cent to 7.2.

Alan Nelson, director of the State Department of Human Resources Development, said that despite the decrease, "we still can't predict a definite downturn in unemployment, but the statistics are encouraging."

He said the HRD's latest survey showed that while unemployment rose by 65,000 in June to total 669,000, employment increased 83,000 to a total civilian employment of 8,128,000.

Nelson said the total labor force, consisting of the employed and the unemployed looking for work, was 8.8 million, up from 8.65 million in May and 8.73 million in June 1970. Unemployment last month was up by 125,000 over the June 1970 level.

"The over-the-month increase in unemployment between May and June was less than usual for this period," Nelson said.

He said agriculture accounted for the largest employment increase in June, followed by trade, government and services.

Among the major industries, the state official said, manufacturing continued to account for the largest loss from a year ago. He said about 111,000 fewer persons held jobs in manufacturing last month than in the same month a year ago and that aerospace employment remained at the same level in June.

Nelson said the biggest June-to-June gains in employment came in services, up 25,000, and government, up 21,000.

Although the national unemployment rate dropped sharply — 5.6 per cent of the labor force in June — the number of Americans unable to find jobs climbed to a 10-year high of 5.49 million. It was reported Friday in Washington.

The Labor Department cautioned that the drop in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate from 6.2 per cent in May to 5.6 per cent in June may have resulted partly from a statistical quirk.

But Labor Secretary

James Hodgson told newsmen at the White House that the report marked "a downward turning point" in unemployment.

He predicted a gradual decline in the jobless rate to less than 5 per cent by next summer and said it would be "approaching" President Nixon's election-year goal of 4.5 per cent by mid-1972.

Pollution curbs hit by Finch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Presidential counselor Robert Finch said Friday he's in town to help fight the California Clean Environment initiative which Finch branded dangerous "overkill."

The measure, promoted by a group called the Peoples Lobby, headed by Ed Koupal, would give California the toughest antipollution laws ever enacted, including a moratorium against nuclear power plants and other highly restrictive features. It will be on next June's ballot.

"If the initiative passes," Finch told a news conference, "it will literally bring our economy to a standstill... unemployment in California would triple."

Finch said he appeared as a private citizen. He is in the Bay Area to attend several events.

Asked to comment on Finch's opposition, Koupal said Finch "probably hasn't even read the proposal or he would endorse it."

"We're happy to have him in the state but we consider him a political carpetbagger," Koupal told newsmen in Los Angeles. "He's endorsed and funded by some of the biggest polluters in California, including the oil companies."

In another area, Finch called Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who has threatened to challenge President Nixon for the nomination, a "one issue" candidate who'll be left without the issue by election time next year. The issue is the Vietnam war.

Unruh says L.A. mayor bid possible

"A lot of people have talked to me about running for mayor of Los Angeles," says Jess Unruh, unsuccessful Democratic candidate against Gov. Reagan and a longtime party power.

"I'm at a very awkward age," remarked the 48-year-old Unruh, who formerly held the influential post of State Assembly speaker. "I'm too young to retire and I'm too old to learn a new trade."

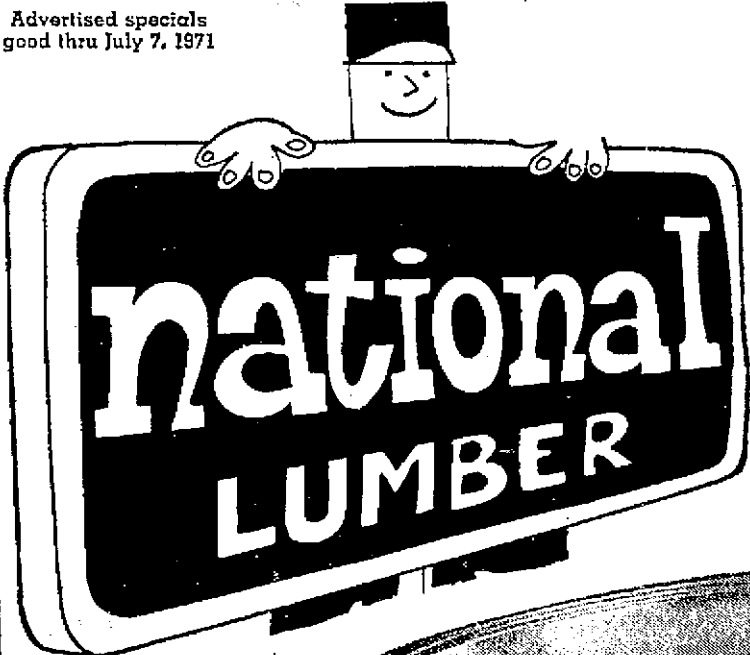

About the idea of running for mayor, Unruh said: "I haven't considered that one off. Any final decision, however, is 'a long way down the pike,' he added.

Unruh made the remarks at a meeting of black businessmen in Watts. When Unruh said a man shouldn't hold office because of salary or travel opportunities, an aide to Democratic Mayor Sam Yorty remarked that "anyone who hopes to be elected mayor or governor will tell you anything to be elected."

Breakthrough may lead to vaccine

Rusk A-arms plan linked to China threat

HOUSTON (UPI) — Isolation of a human cancer virus for the first time in laboratory experiments that could lead to creation of a vaccine was announced Friday by M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

At least five years of research would be necessary throughout the world, a hospital spokesman said, to determine whether the virus causes cancer in a healthy person and to learn the nature of antibodies for the vaccine.

A team headed by Dr. Elizabeth S. Priori, an assistant virology professor, and Dr. Elon Dmochowski, head of the hospital's virology section, isolated a spherical-shaped virus, known as Type C.

The virus was first detected 14 years ago by Dmochowski and a fellow researcher.

For the isolation experiment, the virus was extracted from cells grown in tissue culture and obtained originally from a biopsy of a child with Burkitt's lymphoma.

"We know that these kinds of cells are found in people who have cancer," the spokesman said. "We don't know whether this exact cell causes cancer."

"One of the important reasons for isolating this type of virus is that it gives you the opportunity to see if it does cause human cancer. What you can do is take the blood of normal people who do not have cancer and inject this isolated cell virus into that blood to see if it makes the blood go wild (cancerous)."

The next step, the spokesman said, would be to determine "why the healthy human being develops antibodies against this virus and this could lead to a vaccine. It will be at least five years or more worldwide research before there probably would be any results in these areas."

Lymphoma is a cancer of the human lymphatic system. It often affects the bones of the face and knees and is found predominantly in African children.

The virus was observed originally in 1957 by Dmochowski and C.E. Grey in lymph nodes of a leukemic patient at the hospital.

Dmochowski said isolation of the virus was significant because it was neither a contaminant nor an animal virus. This was proved through an exhaustive series of tests and subsequently verified by scientific teams at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Center in New York and the National Cancer Institute.

He said the biological evidence shown by the experimental data indicated the isolated virus infects human embryo cells grown in tissue culture.

"The availability of this virus provides a tool of great potential for investigation of the role of viruses in human cancer and perhaps even for vaccination studies," Dmochowski said.

Dr. Carl G. Baker, director of the National Cancer Institute near Washington,

D.C., said the announcement could have major significance, "but I tend to think there is not enough data to decide that yet."

Strong quake jars

Philippine section

MANILA (AP) — A fairly strong earthquake jarred the southernmost Luzon Province of Sorsogon on Friday, a spokesman for the Weather Bureau's geophysical division reported.

The quake lasted several seconds but there were no reports of casualties or property damage.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk told the South Vietnamese premier in May 1964 that the United States would use nuclear weapons if the Communist Chinese entered the war in force, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Friday.

"We would not allow ourselves to be bled white fighting them with conventional weapons," Rusk told Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

The Post-Dispatch said the report was contained in secret Pentagon papers, but does not purport to reflect Rusk's own language. It is the language of a cablegram from Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, the American commander-in-chief in the Pacific, to the State Department concerning a May 30, 1964, meeting between Rusk and Khanh.

THE CABLEGRAM said: "This meant that if escalation brought about major Chinese attack, it would also involve use of nuclear arms."

Interviewed Friday about the Pentagon papers and the war, Rusk said:

"I cannot imagine war between the United States and mainland China or the Soviet Union not becoming nuclear."

Nonetheless, he said he never advocated the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam and thought nuclear war could best be avoided by not spreading the war.

"Under no circumstances at any time did I even recommend the use of nuclear weapons," said Rusk, now a professor of international law at the University of Georgia.

The cablegram noted that many free world leaders would oppose the introduction of nuclear arms in South Vietnam. It cited specifically opposition from Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China and Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations.

"Many Asians seemed to see an element of racial discrimination in the use of nuclear arms; something we would do to Asians but not to Westerners," the cable said in reporting Rusk's side of the talks.

"Kanh replied he certainly had no quarrel with American use of nuclear arms, noting that decisive use of atomic bombs on Japan had in WWII WAR SAVED NOT ONLY American but also Japanese lives," said the message to Washington.

"ONE MUST use the force one had; if Chinese used masses of humanity, we would use superior firepower."

The Post-Dispatch said the Rusk-Kanh conference occurred at a time when Americans considered the Vietnam situation grave and the U.S. government was considering deeper involvement in the war. It also came about four months before the Chinese exploded their first atomic bomb.

The Post-Dispatch said the cable relating to the 1964 conference was in a second installment of Pentagon documents the newspaper has obtained.

Mafia power struggle seen

NEW YORK (UPI) — The shooting of reputed Brooklyn Mafia overlord Joseph Colombo Sr. Monday was definitely part of an underworld power struggle, police said Friday.

The announcement was made at a news conference as Colombo, 48, remained unconscious and in critical condition at Roosevelt Hospital. Authorities said he showed slight improvement Friday.

One New York newspaper, the Daily News, quoting unnamed police sources, said Colombo's assailant had been promised $200,000 in cash and safe escape out of the country, but he was doubled-crossed and gunned down moments after he wounded Colombo.

Robert Daley, deputy commissioner in charge of press relations, told newsmen that new information indicated Colombo was shot "as part of a struggle for preeminence among certain segments of the Italian community."

"The plan to shoot Colombo was very detailed and worked out and approved several days before the shooting," Daley said.

"There were to be other victims," Daley said. He said the other people who were to be killed are now under police protection but he declined to name them.

Daley said police have evidence that indicates the identity of the person who hired the alleged assailant, Jerome A. Johnson, 24, a Negro, who was shot and killed seconds after he shot Colombo. Daley said police had "every hope" of making arrests in the case.

"Johnson was hired to hit Mr. Colombo," Daley said. He refused, however, to disclose how police obtained their information. "There are lives in danger here," he said. "We're trying to keep people from getting killed."

Daley produced a movie camera which he said was the one Johnson was using before Colombo was shot. Johnson had posed as a freelance photographer at the Italian-American Unity Day rally in Columbus Circle. The rally had been organized by Colombo, founder of the Italian-American Civil Rights League.

Daley said Johnson rented the camera in Boston with a bad check.

Colombo was shot in the head, neck and jaw. Police have not yet determined who killed his assailant.

Death sentence urged for pushers of heroin

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — A Middlesex County Superior Court judge said Friday persons convicted of selling heroin should be executed.

"The citizens of this commonwealth ought to re-examine their attitude toward capital punishment," Judge Henry J. Chmielinski Jr. said. "It should be invoked against those who are heroin pushers."

The judge said when he first went on the bench eight years ago he handled one or two drug cases a month. "One morning recently I handled 53 drug cases, more than half of them involving heroin," he said.

Chmielinski said Spain and Iran do not have drug problems.

"I visited Iran recently. Four men were arrested for illegal sale of drugs. They were found guilty and the next morning taken out and shot by a firing squad," he said.

FDA links fireworks to 8 deaths

41 badly hurt over 3 years

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration said on the eve of the 4th of July weekend that illegal fireworks have killed at least eight persons and seriously injured 41 others in the past three years.

Thousands of additional injuries have been reported but not confirmed, it said Friday.

The agency also announced the ban of five additional toys as hazardous and the recall of two more lines of lead-contaminated dinnerware.

IN RELEASING the admittedly conservative accident figures, the FDA said it has been unable to stamp out traffic in fireworks containing more than the federal limit of two grains of powder.

The agency said it has seized 60 loads of illegal fireworks this year, the latest last Friday involving 310,000 units worth $35,000 at a Holland, Ohio, company.

THE FDA has had authority over fireworks since the Federal Hazardous Substances Act became effective one year ago.

The recall of the five toys brings to 99 the number banned since last December.

The FDA identified the toys, their manufacturer or distributor, and their hazard as: plastic squeeze toy with squeaker, Stahwood Toy Co., New York, N.Y., squeaker can be dislodged and swallowed; Reggie Rabbit stuffed animal, R. Dabkin and Co., Brisbane, Calif., sharp or pointed material; Leatherette Toy Dog, Herman Pecker and Co., New York, N.Y., sharp edges on metal eyeglasses attached to toy; Standing Buckskin Toy Donkey, Herman Pecker and Co., sharp ties in ears; Orotecto-O Squeeze Me Toy, Reliance Products Corp., sharp or pointed material; and Color Chime Xylophone, S. S. Kresge Co., Detroit, nails that can be dislodged.

THE FDA said in addition these two brands of dinnerware are being recalled because of lead contamination: Symphony in Blue Fine China, Household Manufacturing Co., Hawthorne, Calif.; and Bounty by Enoch Wedgewood Tunstall Ltd., England.

Also under recall this week because of suspected salmonella contamination is Ravarino-Freschi Egg Noodles in 12-ounce packages manufactured by Ravarino and Freschi Inc., St. Louis.

Vichyssoise is recalled in botulism death

Associated Press

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Friday tentatively confirmed that a botulism-contaminated can of a nationally distributed brand of vichyssoise caused the death of a Westchester County, N.Y., man and paralysis of his wife.

The confirmation came in Washington as a nationwide search was launched to recover 6,444 cans of Bon Vivant brand vichyssoise suspected of botulism contamination.

In Westchester County, health officials said a state laboratory test showed the botulism caused the Wednesday night death of Samuel Cochran, 61, and paralysis of his wife Grace, 64, in Bedford Village.

Meanwhile, distributors and retailers were requested by the National Canners Association to return cans of the vichyssoise bearing the Bon Vivant Label and code number V-141-USA 71 to Bon Vivant Inc. headquarters in Newark, N.J.

Reagan-U.S. accord CRLA veto called off

WASHINGTON — Gov. Reagan Friday agreed to remove his veto of the California Rural Legal Assistance program.

Under a final accord with the federal government, however, the governor is in a position to eventually take control of between the governor and the Nixon administration, which was under intense pressure from both sides — from Reagan to abolish the project and from supporters of it to assure its continuation.

The final agreement was much different from a tentative accord announced two days ago by Frank Carlucci, director of OEO. The original agreement would have severely restricted the antipoverty lawyers, thereby presenting a clear victory for Reagan. For example the lawyers, for the project would have been restricted in their representation of clients in union cases and their spare time activity to find some way to avoid acts that result in "damaging misunderstanding" by the public of the project's activity.

The agreement also refunds the project at $2.6 million through 1972. In what project officials feel is a major point, lawyers would be allowed to represent clients before legislative bodies, such as city councils.

However, officials and lawyers for the project said they were pleased with the settlement and felt that Reagan made major concessions in his running battle with the program, which provides legal services for California's rural poor.

The agreement also settled a major conflict beall legal services programs in the state. Also, under the agreement, the Office of Economic Opportunity would provide a $2.5 million grant to set up a foundation to study methods of providing comprehensive service in the state. The foundation could recommend a new program that would absorb CRLA.

Wrong way

Q. I am one of the morticians called to the scene of the June 6 fatal accident on the Queen's Way Bridge involving a driver going the wrong way. I drive over the bridge daily and I actually am spooked because I wouldn't be able to see a driver coming the wrong way until it would be almost too late on the hump-backed span. Has the city taken any steps to correct the problem? With so many persons using the bridge to visit the Queen Mary, I think something should be done as soon as possible. S.B., Long Beach.

A. A spokesman for the Long Beach Traffic Engineer's office told ACTION LINE that city officials are very concerned about the situation and are doing "everything that is humanly possible" to prevent a recurrence of the recent tragic accident. Additional signs warning motorists not to enter the Queen's Way Bridge the wrong way from the Queen Mary side have been installed since the accident. The traffic engineer's office still is studying the situation and plans to take additional steps to solve the problem.

Suit to a T

Q. I watched the Long Beach Model T Club's climb up Signal Hill May 16 and found it fun and interesting. I would like to know more about this club. Can you tell me who started it, when it began and when and where they meet now? G.N., Long Beach.

A. The club began in 1954 with seven members and was founded by Paul McGinnis, Ronald McWillie, Mark Hanna, Samuel Heintzelman and Peter F. MacKenzie. Club members meet at 7:30 p.m. the second Thursday for each month at the Signal Hill Community Center, 1770 E. Hill St., and one Sunday each month they take their cars out for tours to various locations. They participate in city parades and other functions, said founder McGinnis. Their biggest event of the year, the Old Car Meet, will be held Aug. 20 and 21 at Hamilton Bowl near Walnut Avenue and Pacific Coast Highway. At this meet, hundreds of old car buffs will gather to swap car parts. There are about 200 club members and membership is open to the public.

Therapy

Q. Can ACTION LINE find out where I can get some information on "Jacksonian seizures"? Is there any organization that provides group therapy to help the victims of this disease? D.M., Long Beach.

A. Information on Jacksonian seizures, a form of epilepsy, has been mailed to you by the Los Angeles County Epilepsy Society. This type of seizure does not affect the entire body at first, but begins as spasms of a single part, usually the corners of the mouth, the index finger, the thumb or the big toe and then spreads to the other parts of the body. This type of epilepsy was named after John Hughlings Jackson, the 19th Century physician who first studied the disease. The Epilepsy Society sponsors the Frontliners Therapy Social Club which meets twice a month in Los Angeles and is open to all epileptic persons over 16, but ACTION LINE could not locate any organization strictly for victims of Jacksonian epilepsy. The Epilepsy Society also offers counseling for epileptics and their families and provides information on sources of medical, social, psychological and vocational aid. For more information on the society's activities, call 382-7537.

Ex-Rand employee in contempt

A former Rand Corp. employee was ruled in contempt of court in Los Angeles Friday for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury investigating the leak of the top-secret Pentagon papers.

Anthony J. Russo, 31, who worked at Rand with Daniel Ellsberg, the man indicted on charges of unauthorized possession of the papers, had been granted immunity from prosecution in return for testimony.

However, he refused to testify and U.S. Dist. Court Judge William P. Gray ruled Russo in contempt at a closed hearing. Gray postponed sentencing until Wednesday giving Russo time to appeal.

Russo's attorney, Joseph Ball, said the questions he refused to answer involved "Mr. Ellsberg and his work at Rand." Russo has appeared before the grand jury twice and each time invoked the Fifth Amendment — protection against self-incrimination — according to a Justice Department attorney, Paul Vincent.

During the closed hearing, a court reporter read to the judge the questions which Russo declined to answer.

Russo, a balding mustached man who wears glasses, filed an appeal.

Russo worked for Rand, a "think tank" in suburban Santa Monica, when Ellsberg worked there.

SOYUZ

They said the sudden lack of pressure and oxygen in the cabin caused fatal embolisms, or sudden obstructions of blood circulation, which immediately killed the three cosmonauts as they sat strapped in their seats.

In the Red Square funeral, the Soviet Union's three highest leaders helped carry the flower-enshrined urns to the honored burial niches in the wall. Onlookers wept along with the widows and relatives of cosmonauts Georgy Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev.

PAYING tribute to the fallen trio atop Lenin's Tomb, Mstislav V. Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, declared their endurance flight " heralds the beginning of a new stage in exploring outer space — the stage of long-term orbital stations in near-terrestrial orbits."

Referring to the cosmonauts' death in their Soyuz 11 spaceship, Keldysh said: "Such ships have already been repeatedly used with success in space flight but an unexpected happening brought the tragic outcome."

Keldysh gave no hint as to what the happening might have been. But the usually well informed Russian, Victor Louis, in a dispatch to the London evening News said Soviet scientists gathered for the funeral concluded the three failed to seal a hatch properly. The word was that a design fault caused the tragedy, he added.

"As I understand it," Louis wrote, "the spacecraft's hatchway opened slightly in the turbulence of re-entry to the earth's atmosphere — enough to suck the cosmonauts' air supply into space."

loaded at Ensenada and its cargo was trucked to Long Beach.

However, the Mexican port is small and can handle only four ships at one time. This is not expected to have any measurable impact on the West Coast shipping tieup.

An estimated 2,800 dock workers in Los Angeles and Long Beach are involved in the walkout. The strike affects major ports from San Diego to Seattle and was called when the union's contract expired at midnight Wednesday.

RUSK DEFENDS JOHNSON ON VIETNAM

to be conducted responsibly.

Rusk said "since 1967, the North Vietnamese have had no incentive to negotiate because they have seen the division in this country. They think they should just sit back and see what happens."

He said he hoped the Communist offer to return American prisoners of war in return for a firm withdrawal date for American

SECRET STUDY BARES 'RADICAL' M'NAMARA PLAN

administration came up in talks with Johnson, and the Pentagon study depicts both periods as critical points in the internal maneuvering on military strategy. In May McNamara was pressing his proposals to scale down the war, and in August Johnson decided to expand the air war, against the secretary's advice.

The account of the Johnson administration from late 1966 onward is that of a government wrestling with itself as the views of some senior policymakers changed under the pressures of protracted war. The Time says in its seventh article on the Pentagon papers.

Three identifiable camps are described in the study the McNamara group trying to set limits on the war and then reduce it; the military faction, led by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander in Vietnam, pressing for a wider war; and President Johnson, as well as senior civilian officials at the White House and State Department, taking a middle position.

AT EACH stage, the primary issues of debate were much the same: the size of American troop commitments; the effectiveness of the bombing of North Vietnam, and the proposed expansion of the air war and of the ground war in the South.

Beginning late in 1966, the study reveals, Johnson was being urged by the military leaders to step up the air war sharply and to consider allied invasions of Laos, Cambodia and even North Vietnam. Repeatedly the President was pressed to mobilize reserves to provide the manpower for a larger war, but mobilization, the study asserts, became the "political sound barrier" that Johnson would not break.

For McNamara and his influential aide, John T. McNaughton, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, the first frontal challenge to the basic trend of policy came in October 1966 and grew out of doubts that had been mounting for a year.

In that month, the secretary made a trip to Saigon and returned disturbed, the study says. Although he said the allied campaign had "blunted the Communist military initiative," had prevented a total collapse in Saigon, it had not produced results in what he called "the end products" — broken enemy morale and political achievements — by the South Vietnamese government.

HE PROPOSED a limit on U.S. military forces at 470,000 men, 100,000 fewer than requested by the military; establishment of an troops before the end of this year would lead to serious and positive negotiations, "but I think we're quite a ways off from an agreement."

One of the tragedies of the Vietnam war, he said, "is that it may stimulate or assist a period of isolation in this country." Rusk said he thought President Nixon was trying to end the war so as to avoid a Communist takeover in South Vietnam and to also improve prospects for world peace.

He added about his role in the war, "what we did was for the right purpose and the right motive."

In another TV interview on CBS Friday, Rusk said he did not support the move to oust South Vietnamese President (Ngo Dinh) Diem in 1963.

Rusk said president Kennedy, McNamara and he, after thoroughly studying the situation, took "a sort of standby position."

"We were in no position at that time... in Vietnam to give President Diem decisive support if he had lost the confidence of the military, Buddhists, the students and considerable segments of the population," he said.

"By the time of his assassination it was clear that he had lost control of the country and whether we could have done more one way or the other, I just don't know, but our position came to be that of standing aside.

"Now, whether some of our people on the ground might have in some way gone beyond that I just don't know. We, of course did very much hope that if there were a coup that Diem and his brother and his brother's wife would be removed to safety but that effort by Ambassador (Henry Cabot) Lodge failed," Rusk said.

Another effort to get peace talks started was made in early February 1967, when British Prime Minister Harold Wilson met in London with Soviet Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin. But this, too, collapsed when Johnson announced on Feb. 14 that he was resuming the bombing.

These raids and a new request by Westmoreland for 200,000 more troops were the main catalysts for a sharp debate within the Johnson administration in the spring of 1967, the study relates, with McNamara and McNaughton recommending a cutback of the bombing and only 30,000 additional troops.

In a memorandum, the two men also advocated a considerably more limited overall American objective in Vietnam.

"OUR COMMITMENT," they said in a memorandum, "is only to see that the people of South Vietnam are permitted to determine their own future. This commitment ceases if the country ceases to help itself."

But after the air attacks, the study comments, "the attempt to start talks ran into difficulty. A belated attempt to mollify North Vietnam's bruised ego failed and formal talks did not materialize."

The reaction of the Joint Chiefs to these proposals, the study reports, was "predictably rapid — and violent." In their own memorandum to the President, they cited arguments for a new bombing program against the North for a continued buildup of troops.

The time for decision came on the eve of the Nov. 8, 1966, congressional election, and at a conference of allied powers in Manila Oct. 23-25, the study says, Johnson obtained a statement on ultimate allied withdrawal that would favorably impress American voters. The final Manila communique pledged that allied forces would be withdrawn from Vietnam "not later than six months after" the other side "withdraws its forces to the North and ceases infiltration, and as the level of violence thus subsides."

THE TROOP decision was communicated to the Joint Chiefs on Nov. 11. McNamara told them the new ceiling would be 469,000 men, more than 100,000 fewer than Westmoreland had requested.

The significance of this decision, the study says, was that for the first time the President had said "no" to the general.

"From this time on," the study says, the judgment of the military as to how the war should be fought and what was needed would be subject to question."

By the turn of the year, the study relates, the air war had become the main point of controversy. Public dissent over the bombing was rising, the study notes, and the administration was confronted by appeals to end it.

Dispatches from Hanoi in December 1966 from Harrison E. Salisbury, assistant managing editor of the New York Times, and later from William C. Baggs, editor of the Miami News, reported civilian casualties.

Although Washington called these reports exaggerated, the government's own intelligence specialists soon were privately estimating that casualties were far more numerous than indicated in the dispatches of Salisbury and Baggs.

ACCORDING to the study, the raids close to Hanoi on Dec. 2, 4, 13 and improve prospects for world peace.

He added about his role in the war, "what we did was for the right purpose and the right motive."

The time for decision came on the eve of the Nov. 8, 1966, congressional election, and at a conference of allied powers in Manila Oct. 23-25, the study says, Johnson obtained a statement on ultimate allied withdrawal that would favorably impress American voters. The final Manila communique pledged that allied forces would be withdrawn from Vietnam "not later than six months after" the other side "withdraws its forces to the North and ceases infiltration, and as the level of violence thus subsides."

THE TROOP decision was communicated to the Joint Chiefs on Nov. 11. McNamara told them the new ceiling would be 469,000 men, more than 100,000 fewer than Westmoreland had requested.

The significance of this decision, the study says, was that for the first time the President had said "no" to the general.

"From this time on," the study says, the judgment of the military as to how the war should be fought and what was needed would be subject to question."

By the turn of the year, the study relates, the air war had become the main point of controversy. Public dissent over the bombing was rising, the study notes, and the administration was confronted by appeals to end it.

Dispatches from Hanoi in December 1966 from Harrison E. Salisbury, assistant managing editor of the New York Times, and later from William C. Baggs, editor of the Miami News, reported civilian casualties.

Although Washington called these reports exaggerated, the government's own intelligence specialists soon were privately estimating that casualties were far more numerous than indicated in the dispatches of Salisbury and Baggs.

improve prospects for world peace.

He added about his role in the war, "what we did was for the right purpose and the right motive."

In another TV interview on CBS Friday, Rusk said he did not support the move to oust South Vietnamese President (Ngo Dinh) Diem in 1963.

Rusk said president Kennedy, McNamara and he, after thoroughly studying the situation, took "a sort of standby position."

"We were in no position at that time... in Vietnam to give President Diem decisive support if he had lost the confidence of the military, Buddhists, the students and considerable segments of the population," he said.

"By the time of his assassination it was clear that he had lost control of the country and whether we could have done more one way or the other, I just don't know, but our position came to be that of standing aside.

"Now, whether some of our people on the ground might have in some way gone beyond that I just don't know. We, of course did very much hope that if there were a coup that Diem and his brother and his brother's wife would be removed to safety but that effort by Ambassador (Henry Cabot) Lodge failed," Rusk said.

Another effort to get peace talks started was made in early February 1967, when British Prime Minister Harold Wilson met in London with Soviet Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin. But this, too, collapsed when Johnson announced on Feb. 14 that he was resuming the bombing.

These raids and a new request by Westmoreland for 200,000 more troops were the main catalysts for a sharp debate within the Johnson administration in the spring of 1967, the study relates, with McNamara and McNaughton recommending a cutback of the bombing and only 30,000 additional troops.

In a memorandum, the two men also advocated a considerably more limited overall American objective in Vietnam.

"OUR COMMITMENT," they said in a memorandum, "is only to see that the people of South Vietnam are permitted to determine their own future. This commitment ceases if the country ceases to help itself."

But after the air attacks, the study comments, "the attempt to start talks ran into difficulty. A belated attempt to mollify North Vietnam's bruised ego failed and formal talks did not materialize."

The reaction of the Joint Chiefs to these proposals, the study reports, was "predictably rapid — and violent." In their own memorandum to the President, they cited arguments for a new bombing program against the North for a continued buildup of troops.

NEW SKYKNIGHT pilot James Grimm of World Pilot Associates, right, and observer, Sheriff's Deputy Don Hayden, discuss Skynight helicopter flights with Sheriff's Capt. Paul Zeltner. The city of Lakewood will now team up a private pilot and a sheriff's deputy in its sky fight against crime.

Lakewood's new team

Civilians cut Skynight costs

A civilian is serving as pilot and a sheriff's deputy as observer on the Skynight Patrol Helicopter over Lakewood.

Previously a sheriff's deputy occupied both positions. However, the city has found a civilian agency, World Associates of Santa Monica, which will provide pilots at about a third of that charged by the county for the deputy.

World Associates is asking $20 per flying hour for a minimum of 10 hours a day. The county wants $40.43 an hour for a 16-hour day.

The figures, the City Council pointed out, reflect that the city will save about $400 per day. The contract with World Associates began Thursday.

Gala fireworks spectaculars will light Southland skies

The 14th annual Fourth of July fireworks spectacular at Veterans Memorial Stadium Sunday highlights Long Beach area holiday celebrations.

Sponsored by the Long Beach Firemen's Memorial Association, the 7 p.m. show features Jack Benny as master of ceremonies, Hobo Kelly, the Four Freshman, and the Rudenko Brothers. Lakewood fire hero Donald Pettijohn will be grand marshal.

TICKET PRICES are $2, $3, $4, $5 with $1 off for children under 12. Proceeds go to the Cerebral Palsy Foundation.

A 45-minute aerial fireworks show begins at 9 p.m. Sunday on the beach in the vicinity of the Long Beach Arena. Vantage points include the upper decks of the Queen Mary moored at Pier J only a few hundred yards from the show. The ship will be open until 10 p.m., with four tickets sold until 8 p.m.

Free-lunch program set at 9 L.B. parks

A free-lunch program for 2,000 low-income youngsters will begin Tuesday in nine parks, the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities announced Friday.

The lunches will be given to children who participate each day for three hours in park recreational programs. The program will last eight weeks.

The commission said the meals will be financed by a $24,000 grant which has been received from the California Department of Education.

Parks participating are Admiral Kidd Park; Bixby Park; Cabrillo Park; California Recreation Center, Drake Park; Martin Luther King Park; MacArthur Park; Carmelitos Playground; and Silverado Park.

Summer-long sigalert at beach

The Huntington Beach Police Department has issued a summer-long sigalert to warn motorists — particularly weekend motorists — to avoid using Beach Boulevard (Highway 39) when they go to the beach.

The roadway is under heavy construction through much of Orange County, including the portion approaching Huntington Beach, where several additional lanes are being added.

Police said weekend traffic has backed up for miles because of the construction. The condition is expected to last through August.

Thieves break into auto, net $1,125

Thieves who broke into Florence Greco's car took suitcases, clothing, a watch and a ring worth a total of $1,125, Long Beach Police said Friday. The car was parked near 5404 Elm Ave.

Garage burglarized

Pearline Farris, 6842 Keynote St., lost luggage, clothing, an electric car and a bicycle worth a total of $2,540 to prowlers who took the loot from her garage, Long Beach police said Friday.

Teamsters, longshoremen have words over freight

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

When does freight become cargo and when does cargo become freight?

The unanswered, double-ended question has prevented the use of the new $3.3 million facilities in the ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles. The unused facilities — called container freight stations — are victims of an unsettled dispute between longshoremen and teamsters as to what is cargo and what is freight.

The structures were to be used to stuff and unstuff containers containing mixed merchandise.

The longshoremen claim the right to do the work. So do the teamsters.

THE UNSETTLED matter is a big issue involved in the current crippling Pacific Coast port tieup.

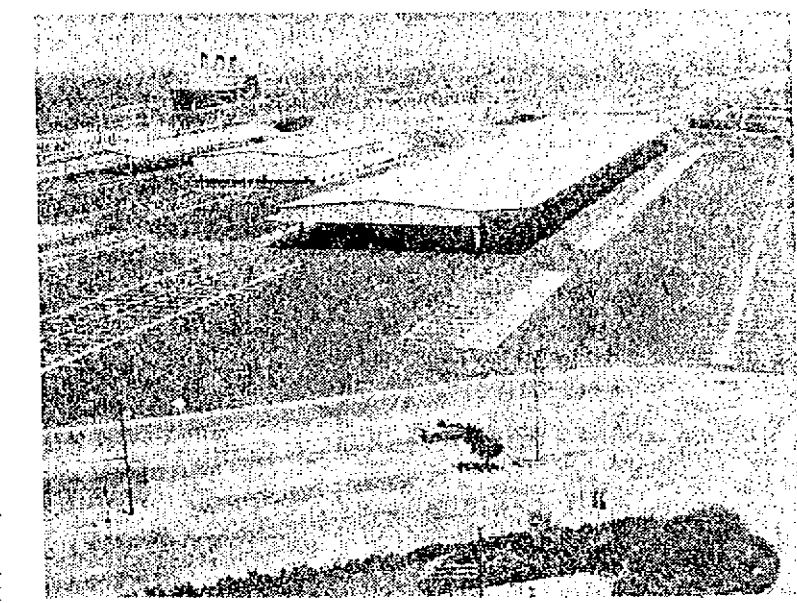

Traditionally, teamsters have claimed the jurisdiction of handling freight. Even longer, longshoremen have claimed the right to move cargo on and off ships.

The matter that put longshoremen and teamsters at odds did not become a major issue until the impact of shippers using containers was felt both by the cargo-handlers and the freight-handlers.

The longshoremen claim the merchandise in containers is cargo and therefore they should have jurisdiction over the stuffing and unstuffing of the containers. They claim the operation is a waterfront function.

The truckers claim that since the merchandise arrives in port and is transported out of the port on trucks the merchandise is therefore freight and falls within their jurisdiction.

As a result of the squabble, the newly completed container-freight station — built at a cost of $2,273,000 for Sea-Land Inc. in the Port of Long Beach — has never been used. The company has been paying $30,168 monthly rental for the empty facility since it took possession April 15.

The East-West facility in the Port of Los Angeles, costing $3300, likewise, has never been put into service. The company has been paying an annual rental to the Harbor Department of $80,397 since its completion in November 1968.

Workers in Matson Navigation Co.'s traffic control tower on Terminal Island look down on the $750,000, six-month-old, never-used freight-cargo transfer station.

Another matter, which isn't an issue in the current longshoremen's strike against the Pacific Maritime Association but could become one, is which union will handle other cargo. The "No Man's Land" is the point where the longshoremen's jurisdiction ends and the teamsters begin.

Under an agreement between the longshoremen and the teamsters, merchandise unloaded from a ship was considered cargo until it was put onto its "last place of rest" before being picked up by a truck.

Arriving merchandise on or in trucks was unloaded by teamsters, then loaded aboard ship by longshoremen.

The agreement was a "memorandum of understanding" between the teamsters and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. The memorandum was attached to the contract between the PMA and the longshoremen.

BOTH THOSE agreements expired midnight June 30.

The ILWU has not said publicly what changes it expects in the memorandum about noncontainer cargo.

The longshoremen began picketing in the two ports at 3 a.m. Thursday.

PMA officials claim the haggling between the two unions has caught them "right in the middle."

"This is a matter that has to be settled between the two unions, and until they do, it is all but impossible to work out an agreement," one high PMA official said.

Queen to extend hours for 4th of July holiday

The hours for the public tours on the Queen Mary will be extended into the early evening for the three-day Fourth of July holiday, officials of the Museum of the Sea said Friday.

Ticket booths will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. today through Monday.

The regular hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be resumed Tuesday.

The tours, now on a seven-day basis, cost $2 for adults, $1 for juniors from 5 to 17 years, and are free to children under 5 years. Parking is $1.

Visitors taking the late-hour tour on Sunday can see the city's free fireworks show, starting at 9 p.m., which originates from the area south of Long Beach Auditorium, a few hundred yards across the water from the ship.

CSLB budget cuts 'to hurt'

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The budget officer at California State College, Long Beach, has warned administrators to begin girding against "unrealistic" cuts in current operating expenses of up to a half-million dollars.

In a memo to the college's operational staff, John McAnlis said the cuts will have a "wide range."

The State Department of Finance — worried about matching figures between the governor's and state college budgets — may have made it impossible for some college offices to continue service, he indicated.

than a quarter-million dollars. Most of the large state colleges are also recording major deficits, he said.

Still greater shortages are expected this year, he continued, because Gov. Reagan's budget proposal calls for the college to take in money from sources which do not exist.

AMONG examples of the incongruities listed in his memo with projected deficits, McAnlis cites $3,008,278 which the governor's budget calls upon the college to return to the state from students' Material and Service Fees.

Despite an increase in the student body of 600 — mandated by the chancellor's office — McAnlis said all student fees for the coming academic year could still leave the college up to $88,000 short of the governor's figure.

If this projected deficit must be made up through fee increases, he said, regular full-time students may pay up to $120 per semester, where last spring they paid only $82.

Greatest over-estimation of the college's income by the Department of Finance is in the area of foreign or out-of-state students' fees, McAnlis said.

REAGAN'S budget calls for CSLB to return $648,240 in nonresident fees to the state, but McAnlis pointed out there simply are not enough foreign students attending the college for that figure to be reached.

His highest projected deficit in that area is $263,000.

And, McAnlis said, since foreign students have already been hit by fee hikes of more than 300 per cent in the last 18 months, many of them might leave rather than pay the higher price.

Nature center still enlisting

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

There are still some openings in the second session of this year's volunteer naturalist program at El Dorado Nature Center 7550 E. Spring St., it was announced Friday by Phil Peterson, supervisor of outdoor recreation.

High school students wishing to take part in one of the three-week sessions should apply at the Nature Center before July 9, Peterson said.

The program is open to boys and girls, grades 10-12, who have an interest in the life sciences and general ecology. There is a limit of 20 volunteers for each session.

Each session is preceded by two days of training. The volunteers then work three days a week on an alternating basis. One week, their schedule will be Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and the following week, it will be Wednesday, Friday and Sunday.

Volunteer naturalists conduct tours of the center, assist in the preparation of display material, work on the information desk and help with general supervision of the center's operation.

The first session got under way last week. The two training days for the second session will be July 12-13, with volunteers going on duty Aug. 10.

A third session will begin Aug. 10, with training days on Aug. 2-3, Peterson said.

The program was started last year, and Peterson said it has been "a great success."

City offices dark Monday

All city offices will be closed Monday in observance of Independence Day.

Emergency services will be available on their regular holiday schedule, and trash collections which normally are made on Mondays will be carried out on schedule.

Joe Schoggen Brooklyn bound

New admiral gets new post

Joe Schoggen was a Navy captain when the ceremony started but emerged a rear admiral. Friday's change of command at Long Beach Naval Supply Center saw Capt. Schoggen relieved as commanding officer by Capt. David Whelan.

Rear Adm. K. R. Wheeler, the Supply Systems Command boss and main speaker, called Capt. Schoggen forward after Capt. Whelan's remarks and informed him he was eligible to don his two stars.

The new admiral, who commanded the center for 11 months, was selected for promotion two months ago, but did not expect to assume the rank until this fall.

He reports to Brooklyn, N.Y., as commanding officer of the Navy Resale Systems Office.

Capt. Whelan came from Washington where he was director of Supply Corps personnel.

The ceremony also marked the retirement of the Supply Center's executive officer, Capt. Rex Corryell, who will retire in Milwaukee, Wis. The new executive officer is Cmdr. William Dickey, moving up from planning officer.

The supply center is in its eighth year of operation and spends $16 million on the local economy to handle the needs of 86 ships and 70 shore activities.

Mayor Edwin Wade headed the large group of Long Beach civilian dignitaries at the ceremony.

Charter bus to Laguna fest set

Advance registration for an excursion to the Laguna Festival of Arts is being accepted by the Lakewood Recreation Department.

The trip, set for July 28, costs $4.75 which includes admission to the festival, bus fare, and a reserved seat for the "Pageant of Masters" presentation.

The charter bus will leave Mayfair Park at 6:30 p.m. and return at 11:30 p.m.

L.B. utility users paid $130 million

Users of public utility services in Long Beach paid the various companies or governmental jurisdictions $130,582,728 during the 1970 calendar year, the Bureau of Franchises said Friday in its annual report.

The largest recipient was General Telephone Co., which received an estimated $45 million from Long Beach subscribers, according to Louis Posner, chief engineer of the bureau.

Southern California Edison Co. was paid $37,836,100 by Long Beach residents for use of power during the year, the bureau report said.

OTHER PRIVATELY owned utilities and their local revenues were Southern California Gas Co., $6,336,500; Diamond, Yellow and Lakewood taxi companies, $2,125,000; Bower's, Dilday, Mottell's and Schaeffer's ambulance services, $767,729; Southern California Water Co., $23,600, and Airport Service, Inc., $60,742.

Payments to publicly owned utilities were: Gas Department, $18,347,100; Harbor Department, $11,098,000. Water Department, $6,540,027, and Long Beach Public Transportation Co., $2,447,908, the report said.

The annual report also revealed that revenues paid to the city during 1970 for franchises and permits totaled $750,747.

Rites set for writer, husband

Final rites have been scheduled at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in San Pedro for former Los Angeles newspaper columnist Joan Winchell, 46, and her Long Beach business executive husband Donald G. Krietsch, 60, who were killed in an automobile accident Thursday night.

Rosary will be recited Monday at 8:30 p.m. and requiem mass celebrated Tuesday at 9 a.m., with McNerney's Mortuary of Wilmington in charge.

The couple of 4545 Country Club Drive, Long Beach, were dead on arrival at Harbor General Hospital after their car was hit by a vehicle that crossed the center line in the 1100 block of W. Anaheim St. in Wilmington at 7:40 p.m., police said.

THE DRIVER of the other car, Norby Simmons, 24, of 1432 Plaza Del Amo, Torrance, was booked on investigation of felony manslaughter, police reported. He is being treated in the police ward of USC-County Medical Center for leg and pelvis fractures and head injuries.

Miss Winchell was a former restaurant columnist with the Los Angeles Times. For a time, her column ran in the Calendar section of the paper under the heading of "Around Town." She went to work for the Times in 1956 and left it in 1983.

Krietsch was West Coast plant manager of Allen Industries in Compton. He also held the position of West Coast vice president of Allen's parent firm, Dayco Co.

$700 in cash gone

Burglars took $700 in cash from the home of John J. Nasser, 3023 Charlemagne Ave., Long Beach police said Friday.

Confessions of new pastor, Cassels and Angela, UCC plea

By LES RODNEY

Did you ever confront the first day on a new job with feelings of uncertainty, a few butterflies in the pit of the stomach? (Put another way, are you human?) Yes, even an experienced and successful minister may have such feelings as he approaches his first day in a new church. Here is an excerpt from a message in the weekly newsletter of Grace Methodist, by Rev. Ray Wirth, who will preach his first sermon there Sunday: "It is always a frightening experience for me to face a new congregation the very first time. Once more I am reminded in that moment of how many people I must learn to know, not just as names but as persons. A first sermon always seems so awesome . . ."

Wirth's reference to his wife is equally refreshing. "I come to you not alone," he says. "My wife Claire comes with me. You will come to know and love Claire, not as 'the preacher's wife' but as a genuine person and a dedicated Christian."

ANOTHER THOUGHT on the drug scene: Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ, in his keynote address to the denomination last week, said: "Much has been said about the deep religious interest of young people today. There are even some who explain the drug culture this way — as an attempt to reach the wider and deeper dimensions of human consciousness. In my judgment a culture which offers little more than escape from the world community where justice and peace need to be realized is incompatible with biblical religion."

VETERAN OBSERVER of the American church scene, Louis Cassels of UPI, who has generally been sympathetic toward denominations which come under fire because of controversial "social action" has sorrowfully joined critics of the $10,000 grant to the Angela Davis defense by an agency of the United Presbyterian Church.

Cassels notes that it is a valid part of Christian witness to help the underdog in need, but says:

"If Miss Davis were clearly a victim of persecution, church officials might well feel they had to come to her defense regardless of consequences. But her case is, to put it mildly, controversial. It is quite possible for honest Christians to feel there are more urgent uses for their money than hiring lawyers for her."

Individual Presbyterians who wanted to do so, he points out, could always make their direct personal contribution to the Angela Davis defense fund. But, Cassels asks:

"Is it really necessary, or in keeping with Christian charity, to give offense to many of their brethren, create dangerous dissension, and impair future financial support for the church's mission by making the thing an official denominational project?"

As of last week, national headquarters had received more than 4,000 critical individual letters, and resolutions of varying voltage were still coming in from sessions, the ruling bodies in Presbyterian churches.

"NO MATTER WHAT is said about us, we local church pastors do have some confidence left. We do have faith. We have the willingness and the desire to work hard. We have an abundance of deeply committed people in our congregations eager to work through the structure of the local church. We do preach good sermons. We do meet with our youth. We do make calls. We do raise ever larger sums of money to keep us all going. We do stand up for the right thing in our communities. We do make sacrifices. In short, we are far from being down and out."

But, added Rev. Grant E. Harrity, pastor of St. John's United Church of Christ of Allentown, Pa., speaking on the local church at the UCC convention last week: "—we do need some encouragement and recognition. At this General Synod you must make clear to us in no uncertain terms that the priority of the local church is really of major concern to you. You must proclaim loud and clear — and all churches and pastors must hear your voice — that the parish church is still at the heart and soul of the Christian ministry."

The eloquent Pennsylvania pastor also asked for help in making denominational decisions meaningful on the local level. "Our Synods and conferences, boards and instrumentalities," he said, "have been long on making statements but short on how they should be implemented. We are the ones who are in daily contact with the people — and with the non-Christian, the sub-Christian, the misinformed Christian, the bigot . . ."

He concluded: "But as a local church pastor I want to say this final word — if this General Synod honestly seeks to help us do our job, we will give you the talent, the commitment, and the faith to keep God's word alive among men."

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?
Dr. Kepner Independence Day has both a political and a religious significance. It unites uniquely thoughts of God and government. When the pioneers blazed paths through the wilderness where highways never ran, they built along with their cabins the school-house and church. Our fathers had faith in God and so provided places where He might be worshipped, humble meeting houses at the cross roads, little brown churches in the wilderness.
One of the noblest developments of our nation has been the public school. Our founding fathers put a premium on education, and rightly separated church and state, but not state and religion. If we walk in the faith of our fathers, God will keep His promise, He will be the Rewarder of them that seek Him.
If we have faith in our democratic institutions and are willing to sacrifice for them, if we have faith in the necessity and dignity of toil, then this nation will endure and no enemy without can imperil.
It is the enemy within, sloth, corruption, intolerance and injustice which alone can make us a prey to the enemies without. Let our prayer for our blessed land be that, as a people, we may so live that God can bless America.
Sincerely,

DR. FRANK COLLINS
The price of neglect is quickly realized in every aspect of life. Neglect in the business world realizes bankruptcy; in the physical realm, premature death; and in the social, complete loneliness. Realizing this, most of us are careful not to be negligent.
However, the most serious consequence of neglect is to be found in the relationship existing between man and God. To neglect one's spiritual life is to suffer the consequence of eternal separation from God. Man cannot simply reject God's Son in life and expect to be accepted into His favor after death.
Spiritual neglect is reflected by man's attitude toward the Lord's House. We are admonished to not "forsake the assembling of ourselves together." Anything less than consistent church attendance where Christ is exalted is a neglect of your spiritual life.
Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

MORE VIEWS ON HAIR AND BIBLE

'Why pass judgment on brothers?' Says Congregational minister: Literalists misuse Scripture for unimportant prejudices

Religion Editor:

In answer to the pastor: One cannot take a verse out of context. If one does something because a verse says so — they are called a Pharisee.

"When one is born again they have the Holy Spirit to lead and advise them." Perhaps artists were led of the Holy Spirit in painting Bible men with shoulder length hair. If we are to go by what verses say — without His leading, what about Romans 14:10—

"Why do you pass judgment on your brother? Or you, why do you despise your brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God."

Or Isaiah 58:6—

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way and the Lord has laid on him the iniquity of us all."

When I prayed for verses for various situations, these are the verses the Holy Spirit gave me. Cornelius was the first gentile to be born again. Nothing was said about any change in dress or hair.

E. Loraine Roberts
Long Beach
Retired Missionary

Dear Religion Editor:

The remarks in the "Hair and the Bible" articles require further comment from perspectives other than those of Biblical traditionalists and literalists. Too much ill-will is directed toward "long hairs" these days. Moreover, I simply cannot stand by and see the Bible used to represent unreasonable positions clearly reflecting dogmatic bias to the detriment of valuable Biblical insight on matters more important to our lives.

There are Christians who do not believe in using the Bible to try to prove arguments of such dubious importance as the length of hair or the style of clothes one should wear. Besides, human sexual differences run deeper than to be nullified by similar hair lengths or clothing styles. A changing world also suggests the need for an open mind.

Biblical modernists attach significance to such important Biblical themes as love and justice, instead of latching on to pieces of scripture to fight battles that outrage the senses of Christians, as well as many other persons, whose concern is more for the quality of human life and the well-being of people than rules, appearances, and spiritualistic platitudes.

Neither the worth of a human being nor the quality of any person's life can or should be determined by a judgment of their physical appearance. The Bible is not a Pharisaic behavioral code book — a perspective from which Jesus' teachings have freed us.

Reason suggests that Biblically based discussion of something like clothes styles and hair length should, at least, take into account the difference in the social and cultural context from Biblical times to today. We would not want a first century A.D. mode of dress, government, behavior, or much of anything else today. What we do need is human relationships at every level (from one's relationship to himself to relationships between nations of peoples) to be influenced and guided by those Biblically-derived insights that are valid for man living in the modern world.

We cannot and should not impose on our lives, without careful evaluation and consideration, every idea or belief of a social and cultural context so different from ours. We should approach issues that concern us, as sensitive, responsible human beings, maturely reasoning through what is loving and just, what deserves attention and priority and what does not.

Long hairs and short hairs, feminists and paternalists, Biblical modernists and literalists, heterosexuals, homosexuals, bisexuals, unisexuals, all of us whatever nationality, race, I.Q., ethnic or religious background, are human beings with needs, persons of inherent worth and intrinsic value who need to approach one another with dignity and respect, challenging one another rationally on important matters of attitude and action affecting human relationships at all levels, accepting one another as persons with differences, and, under all circumstances, affirming one another's worth and humanity.

'Never saw Christ with short hair'

DEAR SIR:

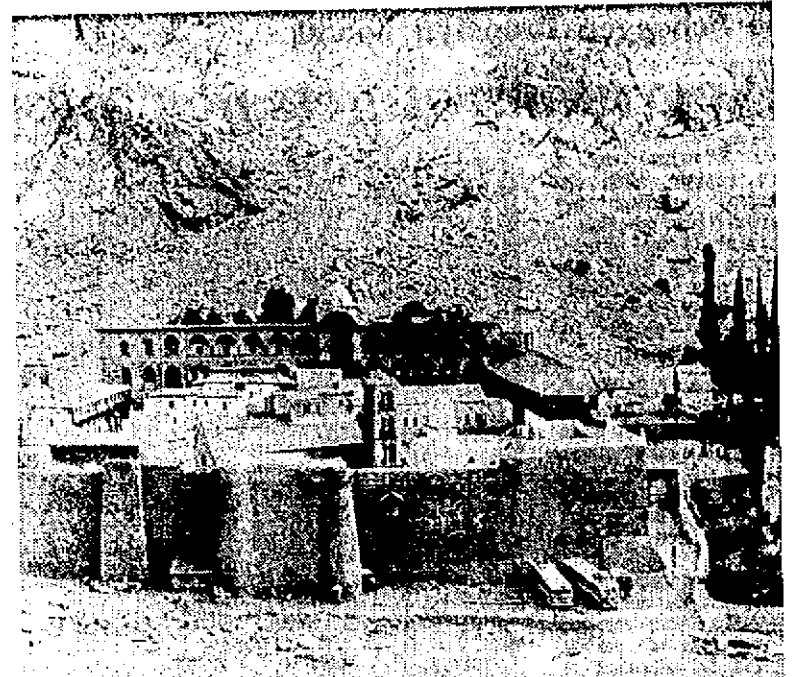

Anent Biblical hair, dress. When God created Adam and Eve, He equipped them with long hair — to cover their nakedness? After the humanly oversight in breaking the second commandment, eating the apple, He found they needed more covering. So He fitted them with identical figleaf and booted them out of heaven (Eden). They have had to improvise ever since. (No law against that?)

To the contrary, nature (and God are one) has decreed and promulgated evergrowing long hair. I recall the old Viking, Langeseth of Minnesota some years back, had an 11 ft. beard, kept it wrapped about his waist at work.

Not I, nor anyone in ages past, have ever seen a picture of Christ with short hair. Shameful? On the other hand, most of the bloodthirsty Roman emperors and their retinue sported short hair. Any significance?

I too, nontraditionalist, nonconformist, nonshort-haired and 86. Will this now number me with the (re)publicans and smiler — the hippies and "Jesus freaks"?

UCC in sharpest church attack on Viet policies

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — The representative body of the two million member United Church of Christ this week called for the United States to halt bombing and seek a cease-fire, and denounced the Vietnamization program as a "racist" continuation of an immoral war.

The sweeping resolution, strongest yet to be passed by a major church body, won massive approval from

Young Lutherans to weigh issues

The national Council of Waltham League, youth agency of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, will gather in Milwaukee Monday through Friday. Some 250 young people will pose the question, "What does it mean to be white and young in today's church and society?"

Time also will be spent experiencing the city of Milwaukee through visits to hospitals, public housing projects, different churches, courts, jails and community groups.

the 728 delegate Synod.

Citing the disclosures of the Pentagon Papers, the Synod said U.S. war aims and strategies are "unjust and must be condemned by the Christian conscience."

The Synod also urged U.S. officials "to be ready to commit substantial funds for the rebuilding of war torn countries if requested by the governments of Indochina."

The resolution asked Congress to consider "the problems of deception in government" and "to determine whether there be cause to censure high government officials found guilty of deception of the nation in the conduct of this war."

Doxology for 4th

Archbishop Iakovos has directed that all Greek Orthodox Churches in the United States conduct Doxologies in observance of Independence Day on Sunday following the celebration of the Divine Liturgy.

Scenes from a rock musical based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew will be featured on NBC-TV's "Today" show Thursday in a two-hour broadcast billed as a "Turning on to Jesus" special.

The musical is "Godspell," which opened in New York in May. NBC-TV notes that it "presents the life of Jesus in the form of a clown show, with actors in carnival makeup and costumes acting out — in speech, pantomime, songs, dances, vaudeville routines — the Beatitudes, the Parables, the Account of the Last Supper, and the Crucifixion."

In addition to the scenes from "Godspell" on the "Today" series, which is a morning show, clergymen and others will discuss "the significance of the radical spiritual fervor of a growing number of young Americans who have proclaimed a religious revolution in Jesus' name."

Confident living

Madalyn O'Hair and a college girl

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

American author, David Cushman Coyle, has said that democracy needs more free speech, for even the speech of foolish people is valuable if it serves to guarantee the right of the wise to talk.

Well, according to a periodical which was sent to me, it seems that Madalyn Murray O'Hair, billed as the world's greatest non-believer, agnostic, infidel, and atheist, went to speak at a college in Ohio. About 350 students, faculty, and townspeople gathered to hear her views opposing God, Jesus Christ, and religion. Of course, this is no big audience to write home about!

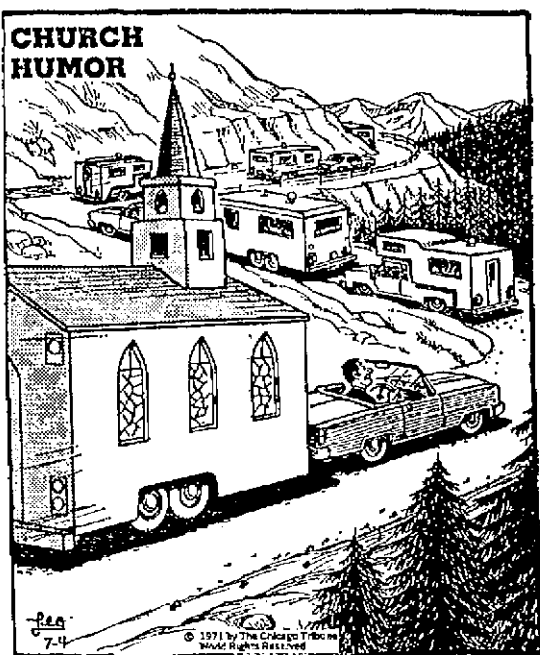

Mrs. O'Hair will perhaps go down in history as the crusader who knocked prayer and Bible-reading out of the public schools. She also tried to stop the astronauts from putting a Bible on the moon, but her influence fell short of the celestial body. They put the Bible up there on the moon regardless, which must have been a great annoyance to the good lady. She obviously doesn't agree with the philosophy of the 19th century journalist, Horace Greeley, who said, "It is impossible to enslave, mentally or socially, a Bible-reading people. The principles of the Bible are the ground work of human freedom."

INQUISITION FILM A HIT, HERE SUNDAY

Because 8,000 persons jammed the Anaheim Convention Center Tuesday night and hundreds were turned away, the new Bob Jones University film about the inquisition, "Flame in the Wind," will be presented Sunday in Long Beach First Brethren Church, it was announced this week by Rev. Dr. David Hocking, pastor.

The two showings, free to the public, will be at 6 and 9 p.m., in the 1,500-seat church auditorium at 36th Street and Linden Avenue.

Long Beach was very heavily represented in Tuesday's unusual turnout, Dr. Hocking reports. The two-hour color film, he says, was enthusiastically received.

tening to you tonight. We really feel sorry for you. Again, we thank you so much for coming.

"I thank you because I know you have strengthened my faith in our church, in our religion, and in our faith. Now, I'll have even more love and faith in 'Big Daddy,' 'J.C.' and the 'spook.' So again I say thank you, and bless your soul."

The speaker of the evening was flabbergasted. It seems it was the first time she couldn't say anything.

PERHAPS IT'S true that institutionalized religion is on the decline, but take a good look at the reemergence of the old, fundamentalist, Bible-toting, Jesus-loving, life-saving religion that is cropping up everywhere: the Jesus "freaks" and others, for example. In a day when we are taught to believe there is no hope, in a day when everything we've considered good and right is exposed to ridicule and contempt, there was heard the small voice of a college girl in a little Midwestern town, mother of the children of the future, who couldn't let it go by. She witnessed for Jesus Christ, and young people all over the country are doing the same. They are the sparks of liberty and freedom.

Doesn't the spirit of liberty mean that all men are, as Thomas Jefferson wrote almost 200 years ago "endowed by their Creator with inalienable rights, and that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." How can you take religion out of the picture? It's the basis of American independence!

July 4th text for America ---pharisee and tax collector

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

This year, as last, the Fourth of July will be celebrated in many cities as "Honor America Day."

Citizens who are concerned about the chauvinistic connotations of this observance might be reassured if the sponsors would make clear that to honor America is to honor, not merely a particular country, but an ideal.

Since the time of Washington and Jefferson, the word "America" has raised in the minds of men the vision of a civic order in which all men are created equal and government, deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed, pursues liberty and justice for all.

The validity of this ideal is not impeached by the fact that it has never been fully achieved. Ideals play the same role in the affairs of mankind that stars play in the navigation of a ship. They may remain forever beyond reach, but they are necessary points of reference for plotting a true course.

So the question we should ask ourselves on our national birthday is whether we are still moving toward the ideal of a free and equal society envisioned by the founding fathers, or whether we have lost sight of our stars and drifted off course.

That is a question each citizen must answer for himself. It deserves sober and prayerful thought. It cannot be answered by shouting patriotic slogans or by acting as though it were treasonable to find fault with any aspect of the current state of affairs in this nation.

Unfortunately, there was a lot of this sort of strident nationalism — which is a very different and vastly less worthy thing than true patriotism — in last year's Honor America Day ceremonies.

Let's hope that this year the program-arrangers and speech-makers will put a little less emphasis on boasting about how good we are and pay a bit more attention to the things we need to do, as individuals and as a nation, to move toward the great unrealized ideal which is America.

In the religious ceremonies which will be part of the overall observance, it might be in order to recall the parable Jesus told about a pharisee and a tax collector who went to the temple at the same time to pray. The pharisee loudly gave thanks for his own virtues, which he listed at some length. The tax collector hung his head and whispered, "O God, have pity on me, a sinner."

Jesus said it was the tax collector, mindful of his shortcomings, rather than the pharisee, proud of his virtues, who was "in the right with God when he went home" from the temple.

"Everyone who makes himself great will be humbled," he said, "and everyone who humbles himself will be made great."

There is another biblical text which might appropriately be read at this weekend's services.

Long before the time of Jesus, a prophet named Jeremiah relayed a stern message from the Lord to a people who claimed, as we do, to be "a nation under God."

"From the least to the greatest," Jeremiah told Israel, "every one is greedy for unjust gain."

"From prophet to priest, everyone deals falsely. 'They cry 'peace, peace' when there is no peace. 'Were they ashamed when they committed abomination? 'No, they were not at all ashamed; they did not know how to blush. 'They have become great and rich, they have grown fat and sleek. They know no bounds in deeds of wickedness. 'They judge not with justice the cause of the fatherless, and they do not defend the rights of the needy. 'Shall I not punish them for these things? says the Lord. 'Of course, none of those judgments apply to us in America today. Or do they?

Los Altos to welcome new pastor

Rev. Dr. Russell R. Robinson will be welcomed Sunday as new senior minister at Los Altos United Methodist Church, coming from San Diego, where for the past six years he supervised the work of 50 churches with 28,000 members.

Former pastor of First of Fullerton, he received more than 1,300 members into that church during his five years there. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Southern California School of Theology at Claremont, and held many important posts in the Southland Conference, including writing the guidelines for a pilot program on pensions.

Dr. Robinson comes to Long Beach with his wife, Elizabeth, who graduated from USC with a major in religious education. One daughter, Joanne, is a senior at San Diego State, and another, Donna (Mrs. Thomas Oshel), is a teacher in Turlock.

New pastor at Lomita church

Wayside United Methodist Church of Lomita will welcome its new pastor Sunday when Rev. Dr. G. Nelson Stringer takes the pulpit at 259th Place and Cayuga Avenue.

A native Southern Californian, Dr. Stringer was educated at Cal State Los Angeles and Claremont Theological Seminary. He served churches in Hawthorne, Santa Susanna and Sun Valley. Active in educational, audio-visual and urban problems for the denomination, he has co-edited a book of contemporary worship songs called New Wine-Songs of Celebration.

He comes to Lomita with wife Nancy, an Occidental graduate in education, son Eric and daughter Lisa.

"The New Creation," a student team from Grace College, Winona Lake, Ind., will present a sacred concert at two Long Beach churches Sunday, appearing 9:30 and 11 a.m. in Community Grace Brethren, 5885 Downey Ave., and at 7 p.m. in North Long Beach Brethren, 6085 Orange Ave. "Communication of the truths of Biblical Christianity and their outworking in personal experience will underlie the performances of folk songs, spirituals, gospel songs and hymns," says a spokesman, "both in the songs and in the personal testimonies presented."

GOINGS ON

Services of a patriotic nature for July 4th are reported by two area churches. Community Bible of Norwalk, 1226 Alondra Blvd. has scheduled a day of special events, with services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. featuring, says Pastor R. G. Osborne, "God and country messages and special patriotic music and songs." There'll be home made ice cream for all after evening service. . . . At Bellflower Church of the Nazarene, 17200 Clark Ave., guest speaker at 10 a.m. outdoor services will be U.S. Rep. Del Clawson, with choirs singing patriotic numbers and a Marine honor guard.

The Ralph Carmichael musical "Tell It Like It Is" will be sung Sunday at 7:30 p.m. by the popular Joyful Noise Singers at El Dorado Park Community, 3655 Norwalk Blvd. . . . Mrs. Camille Svensson, formerly a tutor of retarded children for the L.A. school system, will speak on "Kundalini," termed the powers released in the meditative practice, Sunday, 3 p.m. at the Theosophical Society, 602 Pacific Ave.

Vacation Bible school to start

The free school includes Bible stories, games, treats, songs and crafts, says Mrs. Sylvia Scott, director. Theme is "Jesus Speaks to Our World."

Is it logical to believe in God?

Yes, but no newspaper ad can convince you of God's presence and power. What will convince you is a radically new view of God as Love itself. As all intelligence. As the very Principle of your being.

This scientifically-based view of God healed all types of disease 2000 years ago, and it is healing many people right now.

This week's Bible Lesson on "God" can give you some logical new views of God and yourself. You're welcome to read it in our public Reading Room.

Bicentennial ceremonies begin early

By TERRY VERNON

When you are 195 years old, you can be forgiven for starting your 200th birthday a little early.

And that is what the nation does today when President Richard Nixon opens the United States' celebration of its bicentennial in ceremonies at the National Archives Building in Washington, to be aired live at 7:30 p.m. (4), and by tape delay at 10:30 p.m. (2 and 7).

Ceremonies will feature addresses by Nixon, Speaker of the House Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Chief Justice of the United States Warren Burger, representing the three branches of the federal government—the executive, the legislative and the judiciary.

CBS cannot fault the government in this one. That network launched its own early celebration of the U.S. bicentennial last April when Eric Sevareid interviewed Peter Ustinov as Lord North in the first of a six-year occasional series entitled "The American Revolution: 1770-1783".

NBC'S TELECAST from

Washington forced it to cancel screening of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," listed in the movie tips of Sunday's Tele-Vues.

But the Fourth of July weekend brings forth a number of other timely movies of Americana.

"The Music Man" screens at 3 p.m. (9), with 11:30 p.m. offering a choice of the George M. Cohan story, "Yankee Doodle Dandy" (2) and a biography of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, "Sunrise at Campobello" (4).

"The Stars and Stripes Forever," story of John Philip Sousa, airs Sunday at 2:30 p.m. (7), and at 10 p.m., KCET (28) offers a tribute to Sousa with the Detroit Concert Band and reminiscences by George Balanchine and Leopold Stokowski.

JIMMY STEWART will be narrator for "Proudly They Came" Sunday at 12:30 p.m. (4). Marking the nation's 155th year of independence, program will feature specially-taped remarks by President Nixon, as well as highlights of the 1970 Bicentennial America Day ceremonies in Washington.

Participants in the latter portion will be Col. Frank Borman, Rev. Billy Graham, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, the New Christy Minstrels, Dinah Shore, the Young Americans, Terese Graves and Red Skelton.

LAWRENCE WELK'S "Thank You, America" salute to his country is repeated at 7:30 (night) (7). Gospel singer Willa Dorsey is special guest.

In other holiday fare offered Sunday, KNBC's (4) "Sunday" visits the replica of Independence Hall at Knotts' Berry Farm at 10:30 a.m., while at 11:30 a.m., ABC (7) tours the original Independence Hall in Philadelphia to see the Liberty Bell and to re-create the mood of the drafting of the Declaration of Independence.

KCET (28), in addition to its tribute to Sousa, plans a full afternoon of Fourth of July specials.

A 2-hour Guggenheim memorial concert of band music from Lincoln Center's Damrosch Park is repeated at 1 p.m., followed at 3 p.m. with a telecast of Milwaukee's unique Fourth of July circus parade, Don Ameche narrating.

John Raitt is host for "Drums on the Potomac" at 5 p.m., featuring a "torchlight latoo" at the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, and a performance by the U.S. Air Force Band at Wolf Trap Farm just outside the city.

On Monday, KCET offers a docu-drama examining the concepts of freedom of speech and the right to dissent in "Above All Liberties," narrated by actor Larry Blyden at 9 p.m.

Leave It To Larry
By LARRY MEYER
HARBOR CHEVROLET

It was impossible to avoid hearing a married couple airing their differences in the next booth at an exclusive restaurant one evening. The wife was telling her husband what a fluster he was and said, "Before we got married, you told me you were well off." Very acidly, he replied, "I WAS— AND DIDN'T NOW!"

Folks, it's very disconcerting to be subjected to this type of thing when trying to enjoy one's dinner. A great deal is being accomplished today by marriage counselors and many divorces are being headed off as a result of their fine services. For any of you who contemplate passing through the portals of connubial bliss—don't forget that IT TAKES 2 TO MAKE A HAPPY MARRIAGE—YOUR WIFE—AND YOUR MOTHER-IN-LAW!

Folks it also takes 2 to make a deal, so when you're ready for that new car or fine used car... you'll find LARRY MEYER EASY to get along with. GA 8-3341. HARBOR CHEVROLET, 3770 Cherry.

U.S. spikers trail Russians

JOHN DIXON, Sports Editor
SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1971 SECTION C—Page C-1

By BOB SCHMIDT
Staff Writer

BERKELEY — Russia's fit and steady men's track team grabbed a one-point lead over the United States Friday after the first day's competition in the U.S.-Soviet-World All-Stars meet at the University of California.

The two nations split 10 men's events, but Russia's second place strength gave it a 54-53 advantage going into today's final 12 events.

As expected, the Russian women's team piled up a 42-31 margin, and figures to hold that lead today.

The U.S. men lead the World All-Stars 62-42, and the American women held a 40-31 edge.

A strong wind blew steadily all day, hampering performances and chilling those of the crowd of 17,000 who sat on the shady side of the stadium.

The U.S.A.'s Rod Milburn, who last week set a world record of 13.0 in the 120-yard high hurdles, could only run 14.0 Friday, and blamed the wind.

"I didn't go too good 'cause the wind was very high," said Milburn, a 20-year-old sophomore at Southern U. Similar complaints were made by most of the other athletes, with one of them, Russian discus thrower Fayna Myelnik, suggesting that the gusts might have cost her a world record.

Miss Myelnik threw 204-8 to better her own meet record by 14 feet, 6 inches, and destroyed the stadium mark by nearly 40 feet. The world mark, owned by Liesel Westermann of West Germany, is 209-10.

Best competitive events of the day were the men's 10,000-meter run and the triple jump.

In the 10,000 — 385 yards more than six miles — America's Frank Shorter set the pace for most of the almost 25 laps, but had to settle for a second when Rashid Sharafyeldinov produced a withering sprint in the final 220 yards to win by about 10 yards.

Sharafyeldinov, who has twice won the 5,000-meter run in this series, was timed in a creditable 23:38.6, well off the meet record of 23:22.0 held by Russia's Nikolay Durov.

Shorter was second in 23:41.5, Russia's Nikolay Sviridov third in 24:30.2, and Mexico's Juan Martinez fourth in 29:23.2.

Crowd favorite Gerry Lindgren, schoolboy hero of the 1964 meet, finished a struggling fifth in 30:08.4

and was lapped by the first three runners.

In the triple jump, America's Dave Smith took advantage of an 11 mile per hour wind to stun Olympic champion and world record holder Viktor Saneyev of Russia by leaping 55-2 1/4 on his first effort.

The mark bettered Art Walker's American record of 55-1, but will not count because of the wind.

Smith's lead lasted only until the second round, however, when Russia's Gennidiy Bessanov sailed 55-4. The redoubtable Saneyev showed his class by hop, step, jumping 55-9 1/2 in the third round, and later added a 55-8 3/4 effort for good measure.

For the second year in a row, Russia's Valeriy Borzov surprised America's sprinters by winning the 100-meter dash. Borzov was a clear winner over America's Jim Green, although both were timed in a wind-slowed 10.5.

AAU champion Dr. Delano Meriwether, who defied an AAU edict by running in his familiar bathing trunks and suspenders, finished a disappointing fourth, behind Jamaica's Lennox Miller. Meriwether ran 10.7, Miller 10.6.

NCAA and AAU mile champion Marty Liquori's decision to skip this meet in favor of competition in Europe was felt in the 1,500-meter runs, easily swept by the Russian pair of Vladimir Panteley and Mikhail Zhelobovskiy, with Panteley upsetting last

Buckner bombs Pads; 5 1/2 behind

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — In the spring, when he was hitting close to .400 and impressing just about everyone, William Joseph Buckner made a profound statement.

"I'm probably the most natural hitter on the club," he said, fully realizing he hadn't even made the team which already included Rich Allen, Wes Parker and Willie Davis.

Now, two months and a disappointment or two later, Buck says he's hitting again just like he did in the spring and the result of the past week bear him out.

Friday night before 10,027 fans at San Diego Stadium he walloped a homer and three singles and drove in five runs as the Dodgers ransacked San Diego, 9-2, providing young Doyle Alexander with his first victory in the big leagues and calling San Francisco's West Division lead to 5 1/2 games.

"I'm more confident now," Buck said as he ran his three-game hit spree to 10 hits in 13 at bats. "The first time around I was feeling out the pitchers and just learning. Now I'm back to where I was in the spring when I was really hitting. And it feels pretty darn good."

The homer was Buckner's third of the year and gave Alexander an immediate 2-0 lead in the second inning which the Dodgers quickly widened with another run in the third, two in the sixth, one in the seventh and three in the ninth.

The five R.B.I. which were capped with a bases-loaded single in the ninth, is high for the Dodgers this season.

"I guess I've driven in five runs before but I don't remember it," Buck said. "I once got six hits in a game — the last day of the season at Ogden in 1968 and I beat out Steve Garvey for the batting title."

DODGER OF DAY

BILL BUCKNER drove in five runs with four hits as Dodgers pounded Padres, 9-2.

In his six-game batting streak Buckner has jumped his average from .238 to .297 and he's also batted home nine runs in the streak.

Willie Crawford also homered off loser Clay Kirby who saw a personal three-game winning streak evaporate.

The manager, Walter Alston, was equally impressed with the hitting of Buckner and the pitching of Alexander who was summoned from Spokane to shore up the pitching caused by the injury to Bill Singer.

"If I'm not careful Buckner will be telling me the same thing Roy Campanella used to — that he's not an eighth-place hitter," Alston said, smiling, "and the kid (Alexander) sure throws strikes. That might have been his first win but I know one thing, it won't be his last."

Alexander, just 20 years old and pitching professionally for only the fourth season, displays just enough cockiness to make him a rather impressive prospect.

"He's not afraid of anyone, that's for sure," observed Alston.

Alexander, as expected, labeled the victory his biggest thrill, adding: "But any game you win is a big one. Sure, it's like a dream to win in the majors — but any win is like a dream come true."

He was raked for a dozen hits but didn't walk a batter until the ninth.

By then the Dodgers had things wrapped up behind a 14-hit attack that included the homers by Buckner and Crawford as well as a double by Willie C.

Smith to finish surprise cycle?

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — One more upset will complete a Wimbledon of surprises today. Step forward, Private Stanley Smith of the United States Army.

Smith, the American No. 2 from Pasadena, Calif., must upset defending champion John Newcombe of Australia in the title match at the 85th all-England Tennis Championships to maintain the sequence which started on opening day June 21 with Tom Gorman's defeat of eighth-seeded South African Cliff Drysdale.

The sequence continued Friday in the women's singles finals when Evonne Goolagong beat defending champion Margaret Court, 6-4, 6-1.

Newcombe, 26, carries 2-1 odds into center court as he bids for his third title in five years and the check of $9,000 that goes to the winner. The loser earns $5,400.

Both men are power hitters and the outcome could well depend on how their first service functions. The court is playing slow.

Miss Goolagong became the new queen of the center court when she destroyed Mrs. Court, 23, in 63 minutes. The three-time champion never had a chance in a sad match that was finished in an even sadder way for her — she lost her title by serving a doublefault on match point.

The men's doubles title went to the Australian tandem of Roy Emerson and Rod Laver. They beat Dennis Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., and Arthur Ashe of Gum Springs, Va., 4-6, 9-7, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Goolagong and Mrs. Court meet Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco in the women's doubles final today.

Mrs. King and Australia's Owen Davidson then meet Mrs. Court and Marty Riessen, Evanston, Ill., in the mixed doubles final.

Yogurt toast for Angel Clark, 1-0

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

It figured to be an unusual day for Rick Clark, the eccentric epicurian, judging from the way it began.

His recipe for success was to start the day off with a yogurt milkshake, a sampling of wheat germ and a sprinkling of protein powder.

"How can you knock a diet like that," he questioned some hours later after two-hitting the Oakland A's and gaining credit for his second successive victory when Ken McMullen singled home the game's only run in the ninth inning for a 1-0 Angel success.

ANGEL OF DAY

RICK CLARK pitched two-hitter as Angels shut out Athletics, 1-0.

"It might make gourmet cringe and chefs blanche, but for Rick Clark there's nothing like health foods."

"I wouldn't say I'm an addict on the stuff," he exclaimed, "but since I started this kick six months ago I haven't been sick. I even kicked the flu bug in one day during spring training. I feel great."

So does his arm.

As he dissected his conquest of the A's, Clark munched freely from a two-pound bag of sunflower seeds.

"Great vitamin B supplement," he declared. "Eat 'em all the time."

Prior to taking the mound, Clark also gulped down 15 Energol pills.

"It's all common sense," he said. "You gotta eat what's good for you. I'm going to stick with it because it works."

Among other things working for Clark Friday night was a hard fastball, a delicate curve and a baffling changeup.

"His curve was the best I've seen over nine innings all year," beamed manager Lefty Phillips as the Angels launched the second half of the season on a happy note. "You can quote me by saying Rick Clark is now a member of our regular rotation."

Clark flirted with no-hit fame for six and two-thirds innings before A's shortstop Larry Brown stroked what Phillips termed "an excuse me" single to right field.

"He was trying to hold up on his swing and the ball hit his bat," Clark related.

The only other Oakland hit was a slow infield bounce that Rick Monday beat out along the first base line in the eighth.

It has been a long road back for Clark who was 1-11 with the Angels in 1968

Meador's Ram career ends after 12 years

Defensive back Eddie Meador, a 12-year veteran with the Rams, retired Friday, and the NFL club said it respects his decision.

Meador, 33, announced his retirement last year but changed his mind. He holds the Rams' career pass interception record with 46.

"We felt all along Ed probably would not elect to play," said Jack Teele, assistant to the president of the Rams. "We respect his decision. He is one of the finest players in the history of the Rams."

Meador said he planned to devote his full time to duties as vice president and director of the Lifetime Security Life Insurance Co. of Dallas.

COBB, TROJAN CAGER, DIES AFTER SURGERY

Leroy Cobb, a member of the University of Southern California basketball team the past two seasons, died at a Houston Hospital following open heart surgery.

Cobb, 21, had been transferred to Houston from Newark, N.J., where he was undergoing treatment for a heart condition. He died Wednesday night, according to USC officials.

Cobb, a 6-foot-6, 200-pounder, attended Newark's Weequahic High School and played two seasons at Phoenix College before transferring to USC.

He got in 12 games for the 24-2 Trojans last season, averaging 1.7 points. His teammates voted him the club's most inspirational player.

As a junior, Cobb averaged 2.6 points in a dozen contests.

He accompanied Dennis Layton and George Watson from high school to junior college to USC.

Stuttgart Ballet in whirlwind tour

By DANIEL CARRIAGA
Music Critic

Hurry! By the time you read this, the Stuttgart

Ballet, here this weekend to give six whirlwind performances in Shrine Auditorium, will have completed its second "Romeo," and will be getting ready for its two performances of "Eugene Onegin" today. Two more shows on Sunday, and the newly-fabled company from the Württemberg State Opera House will be gone. Again.

Thus, these four days we have them are hectic and exciting ones for the dance-hungry Southland. I wish, therefore, that I could be ecstatic about the opening performance of John Cranko's "Romeo and Juliet," as danced by Marcia Haydee, Egon Madsen, Richard Cragun, and Jan Stripling, Thursday night before a wildly receptive audience. But I can not.

NOT that the performance did not deserve some of the acclaim it was receiving on this occasion. Miss Haydee's Juliet is as touching and deeply etched as we expected; the rest of the casting is strong; and Cranko's 1962 choreography, though inconsistent about grabbing, and holding, the watcher's sympathies, remains a major job by a major choreographer. (After seeing his "Taming of the Shrew" in 1969, I still believe that.)

But, overall, this performance, and this mounting, fail in their emotional impact. The separate details may add up to an admirable professional job, but they never compel the observer to weep, or to forget himself.

Haydee creates a complicated Juliet, one who nearly anticipates each turn of the plot before it happens. Like her most illustrious predecessors in the role, she makes no distinction between the acting and the dancing: they are the same thing. And, as always, her technical achievements are internalized to the point of self-effacement.

Perhaps Haydee is more spontaneous with another Romeo. As things were, on opening night, Egon Madsen's hero projected more dutifulness than impetuosity as her lover. Madsen is boyish enough, fleet enough, and secure enough for the role. But, by Haydee's standards, he is too bland a partner to make believable the compelling action in this play.

RICHARD Cragun's Mercutio is the model of jocular nonchalance and effortless elevation — until his death scene, wherein Cranko has provided details that get laughs instead of movements that tell the story Jan Stripling's Tybalt suffers from the same overdirection, an anticlimactic death scene that fatigues, rather than stuns, the audience. Otherwise, Stripling makes a striking, purposeful, elegant Tybalt; we would like to see this dancer in larger roles.

Reid Anderson has deepened his playing of Paris since the Fall of 1969 (at the Pavilion); we no longer lose him in the crowd. And Ruth Papendick's Lady Capulet remains a complete, if necessarily brief, characterization. The memory of her being carried off, atop Tybalt's bier, at the conclusion of Act II, is an ineradicable one.

Three conductors lead the Stuttgart's six shows this weekend. At the first "Romeo," the conductor was Californian Kenneth Klein, who is now permanent Music Director of the Guadalajara Symphony. Klein led a relaxed performance, neatly executed by a good pit orchestra. It was not, however, a reading of any compelling qualities — the urgency, the shrieks, the palpitations, the precipitousness we know live in this score were given genteel handling. Better a few ugly sounds, I say, than an undramatic performance.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your Birthday Today: Rejuvenation becomes a way of life for all of today's natives. Including our nation, in the coming year, all the moment there is a mixture of good, bad, and indifferent news for almost everybody, on all levels. Today's natives are industrious, particular about petty details, easy-going but with a choiceworthy temper.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You have responsibility while others are free to loaf or play. Travel is the least favored form of action and should be ditched.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Scattering your time in so many diverse directions is complicated enough, but a last-minute invitation also influences your plans.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your outlook is a varied sequence, including quite a number who have paid you little attention in the past.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Social activities fill your holiday. Make the rounds. You've neglected too many people too long and should do something extra to make amends.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Deeds and facts speak for themselves. You need no little more than help others to see them.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put aside career ambitions and save yourself a complete holiday treat. Even in possible crowded conditions, personal hopes receive strong emphasis and encouragement.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give yourself time and space to settle long-standing questions. An excellent opening exists for seeing things in larger perspective.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Only the very astute viewer will be aware of the tremendous potentials present in today's scene. Tomorrow will be plenty of time to begin action on what you work up in your mind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You needn't take everything and everything at face value--but as you can't get away with words very long either.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Overlaid schedules, too long committed to detailed approaches, force simplicity as the way years on.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendly family members show specific needs when you're least set to cope with them. Time spent explaining is costly but results' sustained make it worthwhile.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): If there's a girlfriend or inconvenient on hand, somebody will try it. Be patient with yourself first, then with others.

LOADING INERTIA GUN . . . With Capsuled Tree Seedling

Little trees shot from guns, live

Special to Progress Section

Men on foot are about to take over one of the helicopter's most dramatic civilian jobs, yearly planting millions of new trees on former nonproductive lands and the scattered tracts where old trees mature each year for harvest.

The unusual victory of man over machine was announced by Georgia-Pacific Corp., the same company credited in the post World War II era with the first successful helicopter forest reseedling on a large scale.

H. A. Merlo, vice president, said the move takes advantage of a new "inertia gun" that shoots growing trees instead of seeds into the ground, gives the new forest a substantial head start and reduces tree mortality sharply.

The change will be gradual over the next two years. Helicopters may still be used occasionally in rugged, roadless areas where nature already has "harvested" over-mature timber.

Merlo said the gun enables one man to plant up to 2,500 trees a day, several times the pre-helicopter method that required digging a hole for each tree.

It also allows transplanting of vigorous seedlings from selected nursery stock and allows more natural spacing.

Most of the more than 250,000 acres of new forest the company has started in the past 10 years has been by helicopter reseedling, it was revealed.

With better trees, low mortality and a head start, the growth cycle may be reduced from the present 40-year goal to 35 years on many good timber sites, Merlo forecast.

He credited experiments by other industrial tree farmers and Canadian forestry experts as well as G-P foresters with development of the improved planting method.

Trees are "shot" into the ground in plastic, ground bark or fertilized peat moss "bullets." Impact of the gun's firing plate on the ground shoots bullets into soft earth at the proper depth.

The new method also eliminates the need for treating seed against rodents and disguising seed to fool birds.

The old method of hand planting on the ground, with a hole dug by hand for each seedling, cost up to four times as much as helicopter reseedling, it was pointed out.

But the new, faster method with its high survival rate and sharp speedup in forest regeneration "will more than make up over the years for the old cost differential," Merlo indicated.

Seedlings still will be planted closer than is practical for full-grown trees, however, to allow a first "thinning" harvest in about 20 years without interrupting the forest growth cycle.

Carmenita Village going places in hurry

Carmenita Village, just off Carmenita Road between the Santa Ana and Artesia Freeways in the residential community of Cerritos, "is going places," says Alex Graham, president of Marketing Management Company, exclusive sales agents for the Dettuff Development Company, builders and developers.

"What with moving bodies and belongings into new homes on an almost daily basis, we have recently begun a complete recreational facility to include a large heated pool and a completely furnished and equipped cabana-clubhouse. Our residents are obviously enthused! They're all such nice, friendly, young couples and I know they'll enjoy the use of the pool and clubhouse," Graham said.

The different two-story townhouse condominium homes of Carmenita Village are priced for young couples. Just $18,995 to $19,500. Down payments are as low as $150 for veterans with monthly payments of less than $130.

"ALL OF the above low figures," Graham quickly pointed out, "mean that owning a home in Carmenita Village offers purchasers a superb opportunity to combine pleasurable living, at a relatively small cost, with the fact that they are building an equity for future use and enjoying all the tax and other benefits derived from owning their own home."

"We're very proud of what we offer here at Carmenita Village," the sales executive continued.

"We point with pride that refrigerated air conditioning is included in the sales price, as well as carpeting and drapes, spacious kitchens with all the built-ins, including automatic dishwashers, private garden patios for evening and weekend barbecues and relaxation, along with many other features are also standard.

"Naturally, front yard landscaping is included and each home has a large storage area to be used in whatever way the owner chooses: workshop, hobby room, dark room, or whatever," Graham concluded.

Strategically situated, the air conditioned model homes of Carmenita Village are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk and easily reached by driving north on Carmenita Avenue from the Artesia Freeway or south on Carmenita from the Santa Ana Freeway.

One-family home losing dominance in California

The single-family home's dominance over California's housing supply is being strongly challenged by the rapid rise in apartment house construction, according to Property Research Financial Corporation, Los Angeles-based real estate investment banker.

During the last 10 years, multiple units accounted for 55 per cent of the state's total increase in living units, while single family dwellings accounted for only 40 per cent of the increase.

The remaining 5 per cent was represented by the newest factor in the housing market — mobile homes.

This is in marked contrast to the preceding 10-year period when single family homes accounted for an overwhelming 87 per cent of California's housing gain and apartments a scant 11 per cent. Mobile homes represented the other 2 per cent.

AS A RESULT OF THIS SHIFT, 67 per cent of all housing units in the state at the time of the 1970 U.S. Census were single family homes. This was a decline from 1960 when they represented 75 per cent of the state's housing units.

Apartments, on the other hand, now account for 36 per cent of California living units, compared with 23 per cent in 1960.

Mobile homes are still a minute 2.6 per cent of the housing market, but their impact is growing. Property

Research said. Mobile homes have increased 80 per cent and 75 per cent during each of the last two 10-year periods.

Total housing in the Golden State now stands at about 7 million units, a 28 per cent increase from 1960 when there were 5.5 million units. This parallels the state's 28 per cent population rise during the same period, from 15.7 million to 20.1 million people, making California number one in the country in both housing and population.

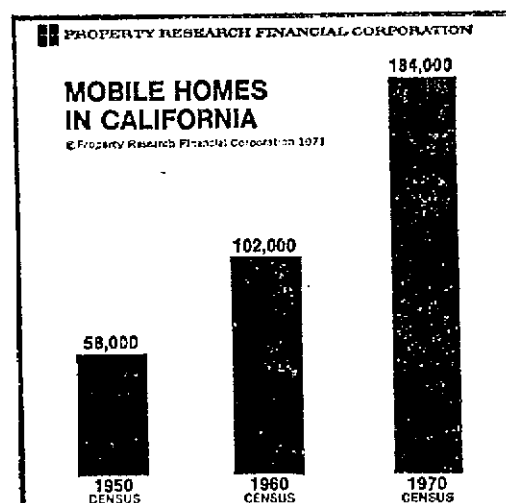

OF THE CURRENT 7 MILLION units, approximately 4.7 million are single family homes, 2.1 million are apartments and 184,000 are mobile homes. In 1960, there were 4 million one family homes, 1.3 million multiples and 102,000 mobile homes.

John L. Holleran, PRFC president, cites three fundamental reasons for the trend toward increased multiple dwellings and mobile homes:

"First, there is the changing mix in the population — a growing number of young people who typically are renters rather than buyers, and a growing number of retired people who need less space.

"Second, urbanization has made apartment living more convenient for commuters.

"Third, rising taxes and construction costs are pricing many private homes out of the market."

Phase One of Los Cerritos center to open Sept. 13

Developers of Los Cerritos have appointed Jack Hieronymus resident manager of the $35-million regional shopping center complex under construction at the South Street exit of the San Gabriel River Freeway.

According to H&H Cerritos, the joint-venture development partnership for the 55-acre project, Hieronymus will assume his new post immediately and plan for Los Cerritos' Phase One grand opening.

Phase One of the project, which includes two of four major department stores — J. W. Robinson's and The Broadway — and 54 of an eventual 116 specialty shops, is scheduled to open Sept. 13.

Phase Two, including an Ohrbach's Store and the balance of the smaller shops is scheduled to open next February, followed in April by a full-line Sears, Roebuck and Co. department store.

A GRADUATE of the Stanford University School of Journalism with post-graduate credits from both Golden Gate College, San Francisco, and Denver University's School of Business Administration, Hieronymus has applied his education to a career in the allied fields of advertising, sales promotion and commercial properties management.

He first worked for the San Francisco Bay area's Peninsula Newspapers, Inc., from 1947 to 1961, rising to the post of advertising sales promotion manager for the five newspapers.

In 1961 he joined Homart Development Company, wholly owned real estate subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co. and co-developer of Los Cerritos, along with Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., of Hawthorne.

HIS FIRST position with Homart as assistant manager of the Seminary South Shopping Center in Fort Worth, led to posts as general manager for three other Homart projects: Coronado Center in Albuquerque, Hancock Center in Austin, and Inland Center in San Bernardino.

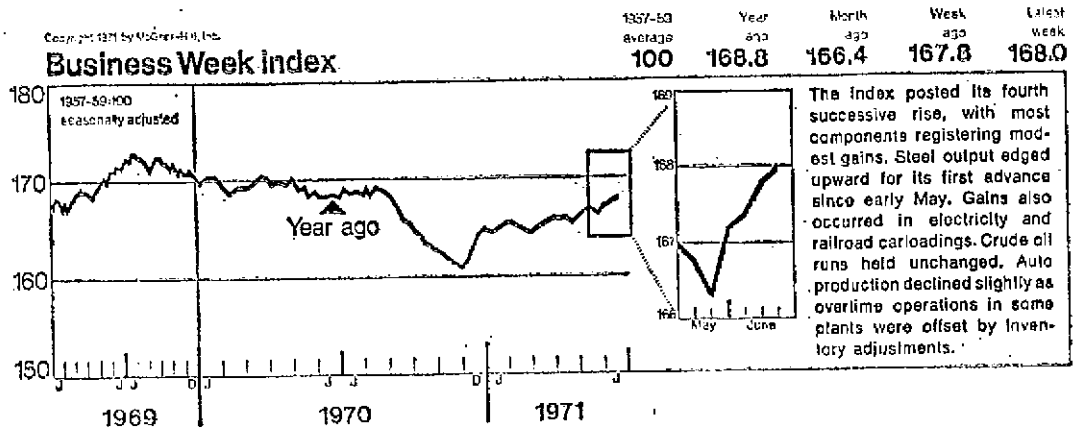

Since 1969, Hieronymus has worked as an independent advertising and public relations consultant for a widely divergent clientele including the Ministry of Industry of the Kingdom of Libya.

As manager of Los Cerritos, Hieronymus will oversee the center's advertising and promotion programs as well as directing operations, maintenance and community relations activities for the complex.

JACK HIERONYMUS

BUSINESS, INDUSTRY WEEK

Steel production resumes rise

The index rose 0.1 per cent, this is the fourth consecutive week that the index has increased.

Steel increased 2.1 per cent after three weeks of declining.

Auto production dropped 1.6 per cent, fewer plants scheduled overtime and two plants shut down for inventory adjustment.

Crude oil refinery runs rose 0.2 per cent.

Electrical power output was up 0.3 per cent, which puts it 5.3 per cent above a year ago.

Miscellaneous car loadings rose 2.4 per cent and all other car loadings rose 3.8 per cent, this is due to an increase in transportation after the Memorial Day holiday.

Although some economists and corporate executives hold hope that wage packages will deflate a bit after the steel settlement, the majority of those queried by Industry Week see continued wage-push inflation, and many of them feel the need for some sort of government restrictions.

An official of another company said that while he is not a supporter of wage-price controls he is "inclined to agree at this point that wage inflation is really going to get out of hand if a damper isn't put on somewhere along the line." To him, the basic problem is educating workers to understand that "they're the ones who pay in the end," the magazine reported.

The only way wage inflation can be cured in the tire industry is to convince workers they're competing for their jobs with Japanese tirebuilders, the president of a rubber company said.

"If they don't wake up, we'll end up importing tires from Japan for sale under our own labels," he asserted — just like the television and sewing machine industries are doing.

It will be 10 years before Americans realize this fact of life, he lamented. Some large industries will have to be hurt seriously and perhaps some companies will have to go out of business, he fears.

Miss Pabor closes 40-year career in telephone industry

"Many, many changes" have taken place in the telephone industry during the 40 years that Miss Antonette Pabor of Seal Beach has been connected with it.

But through it all Miss Pabor, a Pacific Telephone employee at Torrance, recalls the telephone company as "a good place to work."

She will retire August 1.

Miss Pabor, a consultant for retired persons, began her career with the Bell System in Deland, Fla. in 1931 as a $1 per week "temporary" operator in a 12-operator manual office of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Taking the job as a summer replacement, the Colorado native stayed five years before transferring to Orlando, Fla., as a supervisor.

When World War II broke out, Miss Pabor came to Long Beach to be with her brother who worked at a war plant. She planned to stay "for the duration," but has never been back to Florida.

SHE SERVED as assistant chief operator in Long Beach until 1945 prior to being assistant chief operator in Compton.

In 1954 she was named chief operator in Downey. Since then she has worked in Long Beach, Wilmington, Gardena and Torrance.

"Direct dialing took a lot of fun out of handling toll calls," Miss Pabor recalls, also noting a "decided change in attitude" regarding the operator's job.

"When I started, you looked straight at the switchboard, not left or right," she said, noting that "this was part of the job and you didn't resent the discipline."

Talking to other operators was prohibited.

DURING THE depres-

MISS PABOR

sion Miss Pabor recalls working five hours a day, seven days a week for $25 per month. In her first job at Deland she had to learn all phases of the job.

Later, in Orlando, she trained operators for work in small southern Florida offices.

Emergency situations, in which the operators "always came through," stand out in Miss Pabor's memory. She recalls working extremely long hours in Orlando's toll information office when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

On VJ Day she was working in Long Beach. "You knew something was going to happen — everything was quiet," she said. "When word came, the calls poured in."

Other emergencies which bring memories are President Kennedy's assassination, the Baldwin Hills Dam disaster, and the Te-hachapi earthquake.

SHOW GOOD PROFITS

College students in market

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Hand 12 university students $96,000 to invest as they see fit and what do you get?

About $18,000 in profits in slightly more than four months.

The project is part of a University of Wisconsin-Business School course designed to give investment class students practical experience in dealing with the market.

So far, it's been a bullish success.

One of two six-student teams has realized an increase in its assets of 22.5 per cent since Nov. 20, compared with a 17.2 per cent gain for the New York Stock Exchange composite and a 15.7 per cent growth by Standard and Poor's 425 index, according to the business school.

THE investment course was started last year after a former Wisconsin student, Baird Brittingham of Wilmington, Del., suggested investment students should practice what they learn by using the real thing — money.

From 32 applicants, the business school selected 12 students and split them into two six-man teams.

Using money from Brittingham, the school gave each team $18,000 for investment and $2,000 for expenses, such as interviewing business management personnel. One team was designated the Wisco Fund and the other the Badger Fund.

Ground rules were simple. The groups could invest in anything they wanted except commodities. They could not borrow money to buy stocks.

AS OF April 2, the Wisco Fund's assets were $59,074 and the Badger Fund's $55,064, the latter representing a gain of 10.1 per cent over the $18,000 received on Nov. 30.

Will the students be better investors because of their experience?

"Undoubtedly," said Stephen Hawk, one of three associate professors supervising the class. "These students have learned a lot of practical things."

Profits are reflected in the grades earned by the students. But the money will remain with the business school. Any loss will be absorbed by the university, Hawk said.

"Of course," he said, "if the students get the fund up to a half million dollars, we'll start making donations to scholarship funds for the School of Business."

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Tell us the ailment, remedy

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The pharmaceutical industry on occasion has been accused of overdoing its promotion of over-the-counter medical products.

According to consumer groups and other critics, excessive advertising causes us confused laymen to waste millions of dollars on unnecessary purchases of various nostrums, palliatives, elixirs, balms, restoratives and fertiluges.

To some extent, at least, I believe this censure is unwarranted. For it overlooks the important point that medical advertising often serves a double purpose.

In many cases, medical advertising must do more than inform us that a remedy is available; it also must educate us as to the existence of the ailment. For unless we know we have a certain ailment, we obviously are not going to the drug store and buy a remedy for it.

CONSIDER, for example, the massive advertising campaign that will be needed seven to 10 years from now, which is when Syntex Pharmaceuticals of London hopes to produce a pill for the prevention of "jet-lag."

Jet-lag is described in the current issue of McCall's magazine as the feeling you have in the evening "when your body still thinks it's morning."

The symptoms may include a vague sense of unease, some impairment of decision-making ability and abnormal sleep patterns, plus slight deviation in body temperature, breathing rates and pulse beat.

McCall's suggests that jet-lag is confined to air travelers whose biological rhythms, known as the "circadian cycle," are upset by rapid crossing of several time zones. But I'm convinced it is far more widespread than that.

The syndrome exactly fits the way I feel at least two days a week, and I haven't crossed a time zone in months. Untold millions of other stay-at-homes also may be suffering from jet-lag without knowing it.

If your circadian rhythm is disturbed by crossing time zones in a jet, then it is logical to suppose the same thing can happen while you are watching sporting events on television.

Seeing a game on Eastern Standard Time that actually is being played three hours earlier in California can leave you badly disoriented, with impaired decision-making and all the rest.

The jet-lag pill presumably will prevent that. And once its advertising educates us as to the nature of our ailment, Syntex should make a fortune.

W. N. Kennicott new chief of McCarthy Company

William N. Kennicott, a second generation executive in the construction business in Southern California with 22 years in the industry, has been named president, chief executive officer and a director of The McCarthy Company, Anaheim, by the firm's board of directors.

He is the sixth president of the company, oldest home building firm in California with a continuous record of building since 1892, following operations as a real estate firm for the previous eight years.

The company went public with its first distribution of stock in May. The company is planning a $2,500,000 convertible subordinated debenture issue in the near future.

EXPANSION of the company's home and apartment building operations into major metropolitan markets was predicted by Kennicott on taking over the presidency. Growth of the company will also be considered by acquisition of building companies.

The company is building homes in five communities in Southern California and also is engaged in building apartments in Orange County for sale to investors.

KENNICOTT was president of the Chicago division of Kaufman & Broad, Inc., Los Angeles, from 1966 until his resignation in May, 1971, to assume his new position.

In four of those five years, the Chicago division was awarded the President's cup for the best overall performance encompassing both growth and profits.

Kennicott directed a staff of 10 persons. Kaufman and Broad are the largest home builders in Chicago and the Midwest.

Kennicott began his career in the construction industry as a teenager working part time for his father's firm.

He began working full time in 1949, continuing to 1956 in his father's firm, advancing from office manager to partner before forming his own firm in 1956, William N. Kennicott Concrete Construction Company.

HE JOINED the Del Webb organization in 1958 in San Francisco as project manager for the Towne House Hotel.

Continuing with Webb in San Diego, he built the Ocean House Hotel and Grossmont Shopping Center. He then went to Houston, starting Lake City, a commercial, residential, and industrial complex.

From 1963 to 1964, he was manager of operations for Maceo Realty Company for the California area, and from 1964 to 1966 he was director of construction and development for Sunset International Petroleum Corporation, Los Angeles.

Walk The Peoplestreets. In Irvine.

Jog on them. Ride a bike on them. Push a baby carriage along them. Stroll down them on a summer evening. Sit down on them and read a book.

Irvine peoplestreets. Greenbelts... that's what most people call them. They're grassy, flower-edged, tree-shaded. Relaxing for grown-up people. Safe for little people. They're designed to take you places. To the park... to the swimming pool... to a party down the street.

Greenbelts are part of the master plan for Irvine's 53,000 acres. A plan of complete neighborhoods — villages. A plan for people. A plan that is a valuable part of any house you buy at Irvine.

Come look at Irvine's villages. Beautiful homes in a better environment. The best work of eight of California's most respected homebuilders. Come to Irvine. And bring your walking shoes.
